Truman Liked Ike's Address

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. Harry S. Truman was asked by a friend sitting with him in the quiet of a hotel suite after the inaugural what he thought of the Eisenhower speech.

"I don't think he cleared it with Senator Taft," he said drily. Then, when the laughter had subsided, he said, "You know, it was a good speech. It was exactly what I have been saying for years and precisely what Dean Acheson has been saying. It is what every thoughtful person must say and it is what every informed person knows to be true."

There was sharp criticism of the inaugural address from the isolationist press, which referred to it as an exercise in rhetoric, and also prophesied that Congress would pay little attention to it.

But the retiring President, in further comment, said he believed that no matter how much the reactionary element of Congress tried, it could not avoid the facts of the new President's stand for the United Nations and for all-out international co-operation among the nations yet free of Soviet terror.

See Party Divided

There are others who are not so sure. That a fight is ahead is clear. Even the casual visitor here can sense the division within the party in power, despite the almost elaborate care taken to avoid any open dissent. There is sharp criticism of Vice-President Nixon. He is, say the veteran political writers, carefully building up his own organization and it is, they say, not sympathetic with the President's views.

There is a feeling, privately expressed by some of the new President's staunchest friends, that his one great error was in permitting Senator Taft to assume leadership of the party in the Senate. Senator Taft is a Republican, but he also is a man who puts his own decisions ahead of the party. He is determined to bring back to Congress the authority which he and others feel was lost during the Roosevelt and Truman years. And he will not hesitate to oppose the President.

Congress or the President will govern. Only the really strong presidents have been able to dominate. No one knows how General Eisenhower will proceed. He himself probably does not now know. But, to me it seems that he may very well upset the calculations of those in the Congress who are saying that Congress now will run the government.

People With Ike

The people are with Eisenhower. It was the support of the people which enabled Franklin Roosevelt to dominate the political arena for so many years. It was lack of public support which made Harry Truman relatively helpless in his second term in the White House.

The American people elected Eisenhower because they liked him and had confidence in him. They did not elect the Republican Party to office. They elected Eisenhower. And if the Republican Party opposes him and defeats him, it may well destroy itself. The Congress will not be able to run counter to the public.

So, the nation looks to Washington with hope and high expectation. And the first thing the people want is some word on Korea. The President deliberately left all mention of that heavy subject out of his inaugural address. It will receive special attention in his soon-to-come state of the nation report to Congress.

But, the parade had one Korean message in it.

This was the fearsome atomic cannon. It was a surprise. The .280-millimeter monster weighs 85 tons, and is supported by a huge steel frame almost 100 feet long and is made mobile by two tremendous trucks, one at each end.

The atomic bomb will not be dropped in Korea. But, there will be a stepping up of offense and almost surely there will be some use made of new atomic weapons. Presence of this atomic-shell-firing cannon in the parade was significant, and meaningful. It was not in there merely to lengthen the parade. It was a message to the Soviet world.

B-29 Shot Down Over Manchuria, 11 Held, Reds Say

TOKYO, Thursday, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Chinese Communists said today their fighter planes shot down a U. S. B-29 Superfort that crossed the Korean border into Manchuria and took its 11 surviving crew members prisoner. The U. S. Air Force denied the plane was over the border when the fighters attacked.

In a broadcast from Peiping the Chinese said the bomber was shot down Jan. 12 nine miles inside Manchuria. The crew of 14 bailed out, the broadcast said, but three were killed.

IN KOREA, AF SAYS

The Air Force said a B-29 was shot down by Communist fighters Jan. 12, but that it was attacked well south of the Manchurian border. The Air Force said 12 Red fighters jumped the bomber and that after it was hit it disappeared.

"The aircraft was plotted and followed throughout its flight by friendly radar stations," the Far East Air Force Command announcement said.

"When over a town approximately 12 to 15 miles south of the Yalu River, the B-29 'plot' merged with the 'plots' of 12 hostile fighter aircraft.

DISTRESS SIGNAL

"The B-29 transmitted a 'mayday' (distress) signal and it is presumed it was shot down at that point.

"The B-29 was definitely over North Korea, 12 to 15 miles inside the border, when attacked by the enemy planes.

"It disappeared from radar contact immediately after merging with the 12 fighter plots.

"The B-29 carried no high explosive bombs. A normal B-29 crew of 14 officers and airmen was aboard."

The Air Force said the plane was on a regularly scheduled mission dropping psychological warfare news leaflets over North Korean cities.

Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai claimed on Peiping radio that the B-29 was carrying out "vicious strategic reconnaissance in another act of American imperialistic design." He said the plane's mission was "an act of

10 Mills Sue Tobin to Kill Wage Order

By ALEX JOINER

An Atlanta law firm filed suit on behalf of 10 Georgia textile mills against former Secretary of Labor Tobin, challenging the legality of his order setting a $1-an-hour minimum wage for nearly all government contracts in the textile industry.

The $1 wage floor, announced Friday by Tobin as one of his last official acts, is 13 cents an hour higher than the present rate and covers the cotton, silk and synthetic textile industry on contracts of $10,000 or more under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Law.

The suit was filed late Monday in the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia by the Atlanta firm of Gambrell, Harlan, Barwick, Russell and Smith. Under the law, the suit is "inherited" by the new secretary of labor, Martin Durkin.

It charges that Tobin's order was illegally issued on several grounds and seeks a permanent injunction blocking enforcement of the order pending outcome of the suit.

Plantiffs in the suit are listed as Covington Mills, Covington; Crown Cotton Mills, Dalton; Pastex, Inc., Cedartown; Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills, Atlanta; Jordon Mills, Carrollton; Mary-Leila Cotton Mills, Inc., Greensboro; Moultrie Cotton Mills, Moultrie; Newnan Cotton Mills, Newnan, and Union Manufacturing Co., Union Point.

Triple Kill Credited to Sabre Pilot

TOKYO, Jan. 22—(AP)—America's two top jet aces in Korea boosted their kills to nine each and a young West Pointer scored a rare triple Wednesday when outnumbered Sabrejets downed or damaged 10 to 12 MIG's in six brawling dogfights.

All told, 34 Sabres and 63 MIGs were in action.

The 5th Air Force listed the result of Wednesday's combat as seven MIGs destroyed and three damaged. Pilot claims of two others downed awaited official scrutiny of evidence.

One MIG each tumbled down under the guns of Col. Royal N. Baker of McKinney, Texas, and Maj. Robinson Risner of Oklahoma City. That gave them nine each.

But a 26-year-old West Point graduate, veteran of 140 aerial missions over Korea, snatched the spotlight from the two aces. Capt. Olphine D. Overton III of Andrews, S. C., sent two MIGs to flaming destruction and crippled a third.

On the battlefront, Allied tanks ranged the base of the Iron Triangle between Kumhwa and Chorwon for the sixth straight day of blasting Communist positions.

Fire Razes Shopping Area At Twin Oaks

A quickly spreading fire raced through a huge shopping district early Thursday on E. College Ave. in Avondale, according to early reports.

Observers at a tavern across the street from the blazing stores said the fire had already burned through the roof of the supermarket, said to have a 300-foot frontage, and the roof of the bakery "looked ready to go." Other reports stated the blaze had spread to other stores in the area.

Fire was first centered in a Big Apple store and a bakery located at the eastern end of a shopping plaza and business district near the Twin Oaks Apartments.

DeKalb County Fire Department reported they sent firefighters from the Druid Hills, Glencove and Avondale stations.

Thousands Welcome Trumans

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

"BACK HOME FOR GOOD"

A choke in his voice, the happy, gray-haired ex-President told a throng at the little depot estimated by Mayor Robert P. Weatherford Jr. at 10,000 persons:

"I appreciate this reception. It's magnificent. There's not any more I can say except that we are back home for good."

Another throng of 1,500 or more was waiting when Mr. and Mrs. Truman drove up to their big, white frame home on North Delaware Street.

GRIN SPREADS

A grin spread across Truman's face as he received the affection ate applause of his neighbors after receptions along the route home from Washington where he yielded the presidency yesterday to Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"This is the climax," Truman told reporters.

GREAT RECEPTION

The reception topped anything the veteran Democratic battler had seen during the long train trip home from the nation's capital where he served as head of state for nearly eight years.

The always irrepressible, unpredictable former President, just another sentimental Missourian going home, had made the most of good natured banter with crowds that met him on whistle stops across his home state.

8 Cabinet Members Okayed But Action on Wilson Waits; Clay Seen Alternate Choice

Army Career Of Georgian Possible Bar

By RALPH McGILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Gen. Lucius Clay of Georgia was reported today as President Eisenhower's likely choice for defense secretary if the Senate refuses to confirm Charles E. Wilson.

Wilson's name has been withdrawn temporarily because of the law that makes it illegal for the defense secretary to hold any position or stocks from which he would profit because of Army contracts.

PROBLEM

General Clay also would present a problem in that the regulations forbid anyone to serve as defense secretary who has been in the Army within 10 years prior to appointment. The Senate can set this rule aside as it did some years ago to make it possible for Gen. George Marshall to serve in that position.

Meanwhile, every effort is being made to clear a way for Wilson to take the position. He reportedly refuses to dispose of his stock for two reasons. One is that he would take a substantial tax loss. The second is that he feels it is a reflection on his character and integrity to assume he would engage in any act from which he would profit.

ESTABLISHED

No one feels he would. But the precedent is an important one and the Eisenhower administration does not want to do anything that might bring even slight criticism against it. The President is most desirous of having the appointment go through, but the outlook presently is not good. The Wilson case has disturbed administration leaders a great deal more than they publicly have revealed.

If the position should finally go to General Clay he would be most acceptable and would bring to the job a tremendous experience and ability. The decision on Wilson may be reached Friday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—The new administration of President Eisenhower officially began the work of guiding the nation today.

The climax ot an extremely busy first day for the new President came at 5:30 p. m. when eight members of his cabinet and the new federal security administrator were sworn in at a White House ceremony.

The nine, carrying with them the advice and the consent of the Senate, stood behind Abraham Lincoln's cabinet table to take the oaths. The action in the Senate was by voice vote, with only token objections raised to two of the nominees.

THOSE CONFIRMED

The following were confirmed: John Foster Dulles to be secretary of state; George M. Humphrey to be secretary of the treasury; Herbert Brownell Jr., to be attorney general; Arthur S. Summerfield to be postmaster general; Douglas McKay to be secretary of the interior; Ezra T. Benson to be secretary of agriculture; Sinclair Weeks to be secretary of commerce; Martin P. Durkin to be secretary of labor, and Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby to be federal security administrator.

VINSON GIVES OATH

The nine appointees took their oaths of office from Chief Justice Fred Vinson in a collective ceremony at the White House late today. The President and Mrs. Eisenhower, along with members of the appointees' families, witnessed the ceremony.

Senator Morse (Ind., Ore.) took the floor to urge confirmation of these appointees, and to warn Mr. Eisenhower against sending to the Capitol the nomination of Charles E. Wilson, former president of General Motors, to be secretary of defense.

Split Assembly Session Cleared in Compromise

By M. L. ST. JOHN

The House state of republic committee Wednesday approved a compromise plan for a split session of the General Assembly after Governor Talmadge appeared at a closed meeting.

The compromise would bring the General Assembly back to Atlanta Nov. 9 for a 30-day "holdover" session, after adjourning Feb. 20.

Talmadge, who previously had appealed for a continuous 70-day session, told newsmen he would accept the compromise. He expressed hope the Legislature will pass the split session resolution as amended.

Several supporters of the move to split the session into 40 days this year and another 30 days next January immediately launched a campaign to carry the fight to the floor of the House Thursday, predicting the House will reject the compromise.

Speaker Fred Hand said the proposal could be brought up Thursday.

Rep. Phil Campbell of Oconee County, normally an administration supporter who was author of the original resolution to save back 30 days until next January, didn't care for the compromise idea. Campbell, a member of the committee, was also present at the closed meeting in the Supreme courtroom.

"Personally, I believe I would rather stay here 70 days now than come back at that season of the year," said Campbell, who oper-

13 U. S. Reds Convicted of Revolt Plot

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (AP)—Thirteen second string leaders of the Communist Party in this country were convicted of revolutionary conspiracy today. They will be sentenced a week from today.

A Federal Court jury reached a verdict shortly before noon, after a study of the case that lasted six full days, less just a few hours. It was believed by trial Judge Edward J. Dimock to be the longest jury deliberation in American Court history.

The conviction was another victory for the Justice department's policy of knocking off American Reds as fast as they scramble to the top of the party heap.

The 13 stepped into the shoes of 11 top Communist leaders who were convicted in the same Foley Square courtroom just a little more than three years ago. By contrast, the first jury was out only seven hours.

Once again, the jury underwrote the government's contention that

THE CAINE MUTINY

By HERMAN WOUK

CHAPTER XI

Next day Willie went to his post on the bridge as junior officer of the deck shortly after sunrise. Captain Queeg came up to the bridge, brisk and smiling, with a pleasant greeting for each sailor and officer. "Good morning, Captain. All lines singled up, sir," Willie said, saluting smartly.

"Ah, good morning. Thank you, thank you, Willie." Queeg leaned over the bulwark, taking a quick look at the mooring lines. The Caine was tied to the Moulton, which was secured fore and aft to buoys.

"Tight squeeze, hey?" Queeg said jovially to Maryk and Gorton, who stood together on the port wing, awaiting with interest the new captain's first demonstration of ship handling. The two officers nodded respectfully. Queeg called, "Take in all lines!"

The manila ropes came snaking aboard the Caine. "All lines taken in, sir!" said the telephone talker.

"Kay," Queeg glanced around the wheelhouse, wetted his lips, dropped the book on the chair, and said, "Well, let's go. All engines back one third!"

The ship vibrated, and things began to happen so fast that Willie couldn't tell exactly what went wrong or why. As the Caine moved backward the sharp fluke of the decked anchor came ripping down along the forecastle of the other ship. It gashed a jagged hole in the Moulton's bridge with a ghastly metallic screech. Captain Queeg shouted a tangle of wheel and engine orders; the stacks vomited billows of black smoke which poured down on the bridge; there ensued a few moments of wild yelling and running around in the smoky gloom. Then it was all over. The Caine was stuck fast by the stern in the mud on the other side of the loch, canted over about 10 degrees.

"Well, well, beginner's luck, hey?" Queeg said smiling, in the shocked quiet that followed.

"Kay, a little mud bath never hurt a propeller," Queeg said. "See that tug? Over there by the point? Give him a call on your blinker light."

The tug obligingly turned out of the main channel and came chugging into West Loch. A towline was soon rigged, and the Caine was easily pulled off the mud.

That afternoon Willie was in the coding room writing a letter to May, the last before the start of the voyage.

New Toll Bridges Bill Likely To Win Senate

By ALBERT RILEY

Administration supporters in the Georgia Senate were busy Wednesday drafting a substitute to a bill proposed by Governor Talmadge to create a toll bridge authority, and there were predictions in the Senate that the substitute will be passed.

Such a proposal is certain to encounter opposition in the House, however. Rep. Charles Gowen of Glynn has declared that Georgia doesn't need toll bridges "at the present time."

Meanwhile, the Senate passed, by substitute, another administration bill to create a State Bridge-Building Authority empowered to build free bridges in the state. Gowen said he has no objection to this proposal and thinks it can meet Georgia's need for bridges.

Governor Talmadge said he was "naturally very happy" over the Senate's action in passing the first of his two bridge-building proposals.

"When we get the bridge-building authority operating," he said, "we can rebuild some of our worn-out bridges without any additional cost to the state."

The governor said he had no objection to a revision of his toll bridge authority proposal, so long as the idea and objective of the plan is maintained in a substitute that would be feasible.

Excitement on Board

"Sure, give it here." Willie went to the coding machine and broke the dispatch. A written report is desired explaining grounding of Caine this morning in West Loch. Include explanation of failure to report grounding via dispatch to this command.

He brought the decode to the captain's room. When Queeg read the message, he sat upright with a loud squeak of the swivel chair. He stared at the sheet for a long time.

At last Queeg picked up the steel balls from his desk and rolled them rapidly, eyeing the dispatch. "Well, he wants a grounding report. We'll give him a grounding report. Spruce up, Willie, and stand by to deliver it by hand. Seems to have his pants on fire for some reason."

That night Wilile was shaken out of his sleep by Rabbitt. "Sorry to bother you, Keith," the OOD said, "but we just got an action from ComServPac."

"Right, Rab." Willie pulled himself wearily out of the clip shack and went to the wardroom. While he was clacking away at the coding machine, Gorton came out of his room and watched over his shoulder, yawning. The words formed one by one: Caine departure Pago Pago canceled. Moulton replace Caine convoy duty. Caine remain Pearl target-towing duty. Obtain towing gear target repair base.

Queeg sent Gorton to ComServPac to "find out what this is all about." Gorton returned to report the operations officers wouldn't tell him. Queeg fumed:

"When I send an officer out for the dope, I expect him to return with the dope, and to use whatever ingenuity is called for to get it—That's all." There was a knock at the door. "Come in!"

Signalman Third Class Urban entered, carrying a dispatch board. His dungarees were faded and streaky, and his shirt hung outside his trousers. "Visual from ComServPac, Cap'n."

Queeg took the board and read: Caine under way 29 September 0600. Pick up target and operation order at target repair base.

"Now," said Queeg, rattling the balls in his fist, "that's another thing I want knocked off right away, Mr. Gorton."

"What, sir?"

"You know damn well what. Since when do uniform regulations permit the crew to wear their shirts outside their trousers?"

"Aye aye, sir," said Gorton resignedly.

"Aye aye, sir, Hell!" snapped Queeg. "I'm serious about this, Burt. You will make the following announcement in the plan of the day tomorrow. 'Hereafter all shirts will be tucked inside trousers. Failure to comply will result in heavy disciplinary action.' "

In a special wardroom meeting the next day Queeg appointed Willie morale officer in addition to his other duties, and advised him that his task was to see to it that every man on the ship tucked his shirttail inside his pants.

During the next two weeks, the "best target-towing ship in the Navy" carried out several towing assignments without mishap.

Willie Keith posted a long notice in the crew's quarters, headed: Morale—Smart Seaman-like Appearance as an Improver of. Much to his amazement, he was obeyed; the flapping tails vanished.

The trouble started one afternoon, when the Caine was steaming placidly on a straight course, the target trailing in its wake a mile behind.

Over the TBS, the short-wave speaker in the wheelhouse, the squadron leader of the destroyers spoke up: "Gwendolyn, Gwendolyn, this is Tarzan. Ready to commence final run. Out."

"Ah, the morale officer," said Queeg, turning sharply as Willie approached. "Mr. Keith, have you any explanation for the appearance of this sailor?"

"Sir—I—I didn't know—" Willie turned on the signalman. "Didn't you read my notice?" he said as fiercely as he could.

"Ye-yes, sir. I just forgot, sir. I'm sorry, sir—"

"This is Gwendolyn. Go ahead."

"Right standard rudder, sir," said Stilwell, with a glance at the captain that showed all the white of his eyes. He spun the wheel hard.

"Now then, Mr. Keefer," said the captain, wheeling on the officer of the deck, who was watching the target. "Have you any explanation for the fact that the first man to violate my uniform orders is in your department?"

"Sir, there are limits to what a department head can do while he has the deck—"

"Well, there are no limits," shrilled Queeg, "to the duties of the officer of the deck! He is responsible for everything that happens aboard ship during his watch, everything!"

On the sea the ship's wake was a complete circle of smooth green water flecked with bubbles, a mile across. The Caine was plowing into the same track again, still heeled over by the rudder.

The Caine had now steamed partly around the circle for the second time, and once more the target lay ahead. Queeg walked away from the palpitating sailor, with a curt "Dismissed." He saw the target, started with surprise, and threw a savage glance at Keefer and Keith. "What the hell is that target doing up there?" he exclaimed. "Where the hell are we? What the hell's going on?" He scurried into the wheelhouse and took a look at the rapidly rotating compass. "What the hell are you doing?" he screamed at Stilwell.

"Kay, that's right. I did tell you right standard rudder," said Queeg, turning his head from side to side, looking first at the target, then at the departing destroyers. "Why the hell isn't that target coming around after us? That's what I want to know—

"All engines ahead standard! Rudder amidships! We'll see whether we've got a target or not."

The Caine steamed two miles. The target dwindled to a bobbing dot on the waves, not moving at all. "Kay," said the captain. "Now we know what we want to know. We haven't got the target." He looked at Keefer and shrugged humorously. "Well, Tom, if ComServPac gives us cables that part when we come right a few degrees that's his lookout, hey? . . . Willie, give me a dispatch blank."

He wrote, Defective towline parted southwest corner gunnery area Charlie. Target adrift, menace to navigation. Am returning to base. Suggest tug recover or destroy target at dawn tomorrow.

As Willie took the dispatch Maryk came running into the wheelhouse, his khaki shirt black with sweat. "Sir, the motor whaleboat is swung out and the target detail is standing by. It'll take us about an hour to recover. If we close to about fifty yards—"

"Recover what?"

"Show Mr. Maryk the dispatch, Willie," said Queeg, grinning. The first lieutenant ran his eye over the scribbled sheet. Queeg went on, "As I see it, Mr. Maryk—maybe your insight is more profound than mine—my responsibility doesn't include emergencies arising from defective gear."

"Captain, I'm sorry if I seem pigheaded, sir," Maryk blurted, "but I still think we ought to try to recover that target. It's worth thousands of dollars, sir."

Queeg paced the bridge, muttering, for a few minutes, and then sent another dispatch to ComServPac: If you prefer can attempt recover target. Request instructions.

"Helpful, aren't they?" Queeg said crankily.

At eleven o'clock the next morning Gorton delivered to Queeg the next mailgram:

At 1300, 22 October commanding officer Caine will submit in person repeat in person written report on latest fiasco to operations officer ComServPac.

Ike Son's Inaugural Recall Was Truman Order

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(UP)—President Truman called Maj. John Eisenhower home from Korea to his father's inauguration, it was learned tonight.

There was no official confirmation that Mr. Truman took this step, but it was learned from an unimpeachable source that President Eisenhower was informed of his predecessor's action shortly before the change in administration.

Mr. Eisenhower, the source said, asked Mr. Truman about his son's leave:

"Sir, may I ask you a question? Who ordered my boy home from Korea?

The new President was reported to have gone on to explain that his son had been "raising hell" because of having to leave his post in the fighting zone. Young Eisenhower felt embarrassed at having to face his fellow officers in light of the special privilege.

Mr. Truman, it was learned, told his successor, with a knowing smile: "Tell him the contrary old man in the White House did it."

Ike Pledges Open Press Conferences; Monthly Radio-TV Coverage Likely

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(UP)—President Eisenhower will continue and expand the practice of "free-for-all" news conferences and probably will add monthly radio and television coverage, it was announced today.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave the long-sought answer on how the new President will deal with the press in the first official announcement of the new GOP administration.

CABINET AVAILABLE

He said Mr. Eisenhower made the decision willingly, because he values the news conference as a medium of exchange between the President and the nation.

He also announced an innovation. Cabinet members will be present for questioning on unusually important announcements.

Hagerty, who said he himself will continue to meet with the press daily, said the new President will expand the news conference practice first fully developed by Franklin D. Roosevelt and continued by Harry S. Truman.

He said the mechanics of radio and television coverage have to be worked out with the industry, "but that is the way we are thinking."

MAY HOLD MORE

Hagerty said that while Truman held conferences once weekly, Mr. Eisenhower may hold them two or three times a week in the early days of his administration. But he thought the overall average will be once a week, although some weeks there may be none.

He "assumed" the first will be next week.

Former President Truman, at his 324th and final news conference last Thursday, urged his successor to follow the free and open system as an important way to keep open means of communication between the citizens and their government.

Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower, continuing previous practice, will not permit direct quotation of his news conference remarks without special permission.

MOSCOW, Jan. 21—Nicolai A. Mikhailov, recently named secretary of the Russian Communist Party, demanded tonight that that party mercilessly drive from its ranks all "degenerates or double dealers," root out hidden "enemies no matter what mask they wear" and incessantly strengthen the Soviet armed forces and intelligence organs.

DOCTOR MASK

Mikhailov's address referred to the "case of the doctor wreckers, spies and assassins who hid under the mask of doctors and who sold themselves to the slave owners and cannibals of the United States and Britain." But he did not talk about any alleged Zionist connections of the nine doctors who have been arrested on a charge of bringing about the death of two top Soviet figures and plotting the death of others.

However, the magazine New Times today violently assaulted the Zionists as having come completely under the domination of the United States Intelligence through a secret deal made with President Truman in 1947. It charged that the Zionists were helping United States "imperialists" create a fifth column in the Soviet Union and the "people's democracies" in return for United States support of the state of Israel.

BATTLE COOL

Mikhailov declared that complacent persons had no place in the party and denounced as "counter-revolutionary" the idea of some persons that the state has withered away or that the class struggle should now be "dampened down."

Mikhailov quoted Premier Stalin as saying that "such people can have nothing in common with our party." They are degenerates or double dealers, who should be chased out of the party," Mikhailov added.

FBI Scents Sabotage Link In Capital Station Crash

By WILLIAM M. BATES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(UP)—Senator Tobey said today the FBI is investigating the possibility of sabotage in the case of a runaway train that injured almost 50 persons and nearly wrecked Union Station last week.

Asserting there was "something rotten," the New Hampshire Republican announced that FBI officials will appear before his Senate Commerce Committee tomorrow to report their findings.

Two crewmen told the committee it is "extremely possible" the brakes of the crack Federal Express from Boston were "tampered with" when it stopped at Baltimore. But they said they had no reason to suspect sabotage.

Tobey also revealed that the train had brake trouble at Kingston, R. I. Engineer Harry W. Brower, who took over at New York said he and other train officials had not been notified of that incident.

The train roared into Union Station at 35 miles an hour last Thursday after its air brakes failed. It jumped the tracks and the huge electric locomotive and two cars smashed a gaping one-quarter acre hole in the cement concourse.

Brower said the brakes were in perfect order when the train left New York and he applied them successfully 22 times before reaching Baltimore.

Brower and fireman J. W. Moyer said they do not know that the brakes were tampered with at Baltimore. "But it is entirely possible."

The question of sabotage was raised by several committee members.

Adleburt Schroeder, assistant general counsel of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said the brake trouble at Kingston, repaired by the previous engineer, involved two cars with dragging brakes. He said the engineer discovered an "angle cock" was closed on the air line.

Conductor T. J. Murphy said the brake trouble at Washington apparently occurred between the third and fourth cars. said he "understood" the trouble at Kingston involved the same cars.

This caused Sen. Lester C. Hunt (Dem., Wyo.) to discount the possibility of sabotage. He said the faulty cars should have been cut out and the Union Station wreck might have been avoided.

Red Attacks on Jews Devised To Weaken U.S., Says Author

Recent development of outspoken anti-Semitism in Russia and other countries behind the Iron Curtain is part of a planned Communist program to "weaken the prestige and influence of the United States" in Europe and Asia, Hal Lehrman, foreign correspondent and author, said here Wednesday night.

Lehrman, who addressed a meeting of the Atlanta chapter, American Jewish Committee at the Mayfair Club, said the anti-Semitic movement is designed to court the favor of the Arabs in the Middle East and turn them against the United States. He said it also seeks to get support of Jew-hating reactionaries in Germany and encourage resistance of rearmament, thereby weakening the United States.

"The Jews," he said, "are a handy, convenient scapegoat because they are different. Of course, Christians are different from the Communists, too. Today it is the Jews. Tomorrow it may be the Christians."

Lehrman said the Communists believe it necessary to liquidate any group "that doesn't swallow the Red line, hook, line and sinker."

LOOKING TO WEST
Berlin's Reuter

Berlin Ties Destiny to U.S.--Mayor

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

BERLIN, Jan. 21—West Berlin's mayor, Ernst Reuter, said today that, in the face of growing Communist pressure, the city will stand or fall depending on how much aid is provided by the West—primarily the United States. Thus he asserted that the future of Berlin depends in great measure on the foreign policy of the administration of President Eisenhower.

REFLECTS CONCERN

Without saying so, he reflected the concern on the part of many Germans in and out of the government here lest economy measures in Washington knock the props from under West Berlin's shaky economy.

Reuter has been head of the West Berlin government since the split of the city in 1948. He likewise has been a symbol of its resistance to Communist pressures. In an interview the mayor chided the Bonn regime for not showing more interest in the plight of the city.

FEELING WIDESPREAD

This feeling likewise is widespread among prominent West Berliners. They feel the people in the German Federal Republic are thriving and growing rich while they try to survive this city's economic doldrums. They accuse the West Germans of being indifferent to their plight.

Mayor Reuter said while the federal republic is booming at 157 per cent of its former peacetime production, West Berlin factories are running at only 56 per cent. Yet he implied that the Bonn regime is complacent about the situation here.

MORALE STRAINED

With more than one-third of the city's population dependent on some form of dole or meager retirement pay, with tens of thousands of new refugees pouring in from East Germany every day, there has been fear in some quarters that the morale of the population is being strained seriously.

"It would be very difficult to lower the morale of Berliners," Reuter said. "As long as communications with West Germany are open—even if West Berlin is cut off completely from East Germany and East Berlin—West Berlin can be developed," he asserted.

DEPENDS ON WASHINGTON

He pictured restoration of the city's industrial activity as the key to the morale problem. "That depends on the attitude of Washington," he added.

United States subsidizing of the city's economy places a heavy load on the American taxpayer. Investment subsidies allocated from counterpart funds now total the equivalent of $208,000,000.

If the Communists decide, as many believe they will, to impede the city's industrial exports to the West, Washington and Bonn will have to expend even more to keep the city's economy afloat.

Speech Splendid Restatement, Adlai Says

BRIDGETON, Barbados, Jan. 21. (AP) — Holidaying Adlai Stevenson arrived at this British West Indies island today and commented President Eisenhower's inaugural address was a splendid restatement of U. S. policies.

The defeated Democratic presidential candidate said the Eisenhower speech "was an eloquent and splendid restatement of what have been peaceful purposes and principles of the government and the people of the United States for many years."

The former Illinois governor will be the guest for two or three weeks of Ronald Tree, a former member of Britain's Parliament at his beach house "Heron Bay" at St. James Parish.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 21. (AP)—Arthurs W. Rice, who hasn't spoken to his wife and six children in 10 years, says it's because "they don't speak to me."

But Rice, a Wellesley College storekeeper, told Middlesex Probate Judge Joseph W. Monahan yesterday that he dedn't mind.

"I sleep well nights. My conscience doesn't bother me," Rice said.

Rice testified in a separate support suit by Mrs. Rice that he had not even spoken to a son when he returned from 36 months overseas duty in World War II.

Our Major Woes Are Still Abroad

Just in case anyone has forgotten, there was a reason for President Eisenhower's inaugural address being devoted largely to foreign policy and directed to the people of the world as well as those of the United States.

That reason, plain and simple, and as he was careful to point out, is because, for at least the time being, the major concern of his administration will be the cold war with Russia, just as it was the concern of Truman before him. That reason, plain and simple, overrides all others because the fate of all mankind depends upon the success of our efforts to stop and to roll back Communist aggression.

The Democrats say the speech only intensified and corroborated the objectives of the administration before him. That is true. But those policies were molded in part by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. In the main, they are accepted as realistic and practical, although the new administration may differ as to method. Much has been accomplished. Much more remains to be done.

The new President has told us there are no magic formulas for ending the tensions in the world. He has told us we must expect continued sacrifice and patience in working toward the goal of peace. We know the specific problems and we'll still have them tomorrow. Let's list some of them:

We still have the Korean War. We still seek a way of ending it without expanding it into a world conflict.

We yet have the problem of China. There are those who believe that the Chinese people can be led away from communism and that a counterrevolution from Red terror would succeed.

There is the Communist threat to Southeast Asia—to Indochina, Indonesia, Burma, Malaya, India, and Pakistan. If that area falls, all of Asia falls and with it go the raw materials necessary for the industrial society of the West.

The problem of Iran is still unsolved and there is growing anti-West sentiment throughout Africa and the Middle East.

The carefully laid plans for European unity and NATO are threatening to fall apart. This coalition of allies, chipped at by the Russians and softened by the apparent lessening of dangers, lurches threateningly on the brink of failure due to jealousies and nationalism.

Neutralism continues to grow in Europe, where England, France, Germany and other nations are flooded with propaganda that the cold war is between the United States and Russia, where pressures mount for trade with the Soviet Union. Are we willing to trade on equal terms, even though it mean temporary losses to our own people, to prevent it?

What about foreign aid, military and economic? How much of the burden of defending freedom must we bear?

What about atomic energy and its control?

These are only some of the problems—few of them of our making but all of them directly affecting the security, even the survival, of the United States.

President Eisenhower's concern with foreign policy in his inaugural address was keyed to the most important issue still facing the American people. All domestic issues remain small in comparison.

Senator Morse Stands On His Prerogatives

If we needed anything else to remind us that this is a democracy and that our system of checks and balances is still in effect, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon supplied it Tuesday afternoon following the inauguration of President Eisenhower.

The senator, who has been dropped from important committee posts by Senate Majority Leader Robert A. Taft, served notice that he intends to use the prerogatives of his office, nevertheless.

It has been the custom, but not the rule, that an incoming President's cabinet appointments be approved unanimously after the necessary formalities. Ike's appointees were supposed to have been approved Tuesday afternoon, to assume their duties at once.

"Not so," rules the senator from Oregon, "I want to take a look at their records." Their confirmation awaited the senator's convenience.

Even though we don't approve the senator's action in this instance, at the outset of the new administration it serves to remind us that the founding fathers set up some mighty good safeguards against too much power for any branch of government.

It also indicates that Senator Taft has made another mistake in political strategy. It seems that Senator Morse cannot only harass him frequently, but probably will.

Safety Headquarters Has Enviable Record

The city which first took traffic accident investigation and prevention seriously has set a new record for safety among cities of its size.

At midnight Sunday, Jan. 18, the city of Evanston, Ill., population 73,600, completed 556 days without having a person killed on its streets.

It was in Evanston almost 30 years ago that a young traffic officer, Frank Kreml, started making traffic police into scientists who trace auto wrecks from effects to basic causes.

Today Frank Kreml heads the Northwestern University Traffic Institute and the International Association of Police Chiefs traffic safety divisions. These two organizations are at work throughout the nation giving other communities the benefit of what they have learned about safety and its promotion.

The formula can do much for other cities if they will only try it. Atlanta is one of those cities to which it has been made available.

Hill Counties Grow Good Corn Crops

The Georgia 100-Bushel Corn Club is an exclusive organization. The 1952 roster as released by the Agricultural Extension Service includes only 266 members in the 159 counties of the state.

Our good friend Herbert Tabor of Ellijay points out with justifiable pride that 70 per cent of the membership is in the six mountain counties—Rabun, Towns, Union, Fannin, Gilmer and Lumpkin. Four of these are in the area where much good bottom land was flooded when Lakes Blue Ridge, Nottely and Chatuge were created.

But the mountain farmers are doing well on the uplands, thanks to a program of careful seed testing and selection, balanced plant food and improved methods of cultivation.

They are to be congratulated along with their county agents and the staff at the Georgia Mountain Experiment Station. What they have done on upland soil should encourage Georgia corn growers generally. As in the case of many a mountain romance, those farmers have started with a little corn and ended with a full crib.

Our First Families Win Admiration

It would not be fitting to pass up the inauguration without paying tribute to the families of both outgoing President Truman and incoming President Eisenhower. They are in the best traditions of the American home—a foundation of our democracy.

The Eisenhowers have a son and the Trumans have a daughter who have been received in the hearts of America with deserved affection. Mrs. Eisenhower, although she is not yet as well known to the country as is Mrs. Truman, fulfills the fine ideals of American womanhood as we have come to know them.

Perhaps it would be in order in wishing the Trumans the best as they retire to private life, to pay tribute to Mrs. Truman—Bess, as she is affectionately called. Certainly her conduct during the almost eight years her husband has been President has been exemplary and in the tradition of what a First Lady should be.

Mrs. Truman has not made a lot of noise nor has she intruded into the affairs of government. She has had no missions except to be a dutiful wife and helpmeet; she has championed no causes; and has offered no advice except possibly to her husband. She has done the things a First Lady must do, without fanfare and ostentation but with graciousness and dignity. Most of all, she has gone about the duties of being a wife and mother of a talented daughter in a manner to bring admiration from all.

Frankly, we do not expect Harry Truman to fade away to Independence, Mo., or anywhere else. He's not the fading kind. Mrs. Truman may disappear into anonymity as she expresses a desire to do, but she will not fade in the affections of the American people for whom she has set such a fine example.

David Lawrence

True Power Is With the People

WASHINGTON—An unforgettable inaugural . . . the transfer of authority . . . solemnly and yet with a spontaneous cheer . . . echoes of a triumphant election conducted by the people freely . . . few places on earth where such freedom prevails. . . . The outgoing President participating and showing loyalty to free institutions . . . the new President taking the oath . . . "to preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution." A kiss first for the First Lady and then a prayer of dedication. . . . A message of hope, of high purpose and of resolution . . . one excerpt tells it all—the way to inevitable peace:

"To produce this unity, to meet the challenge of our time, destiny has laid upon our country the responsibility of the free world's leadership. So it is proper that we assure our friends once again that, in the discharge of this responsibility, we Americans know and observe the difference between world leadership and imperialism; between firmness and truculence; between a thoughtfully calculated goal and spasmodic reaction to the stimulus of emergencies."

Firmness, strength, steadfastness, courage, bravery . . . a readiness to face the bluff of the Russian tyrant with the moral force of our united peoples . . . the goal is clearly pointed out—the "winning of the peace."

Memories of other inaugurations . . . Jan. 20, 1949, when Truman stood there humbly and without rancor. . . . Jan. 20, 1945, when Franklin Roosevelt wasn't able to go to the Capitol but stood on the White House balcony . . . his face haggard and pale . . . his cheeks sunken as his son James lifted him to the pedestal to speak the inaugural message. . . . Less than 90 days later the President was dead.

Back to March 4, 1933 when the same man in vibrant phrases, with strength of voice and body, said, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

Back to March 4, 1913, when Woodrow Wilson, with the finest phrases of them all—not a word written for him—spoke his message of inspiration as the Democrats took over for the first time since 1893 . . . a span of 20 years, too.

Then, on March 4, 1921, when a Republican took over again . . . Woodrow Wilson, victorious leader in World War I but now enfeebled . . . unable to walk to the front of the Capitol . . . bidding his successor, Warren Harding, good luck in the Vice-President's room where the outgoing President had come to sign last-minute bills . . . Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the elder—archfoe of the League of Nations and of Wilson—standing near by . . . the cold look that Wilson gave him . . . the polite, deferential Harding helping the broken Wilson to his feet . . . Harding taking the oath a few minutes later alone on the east front, happy, hopeful, solemn.

Foreign Policy Stays the Same

WASHINGTON—We have had a change in administration of government, in the party that manages and the President who directs. But there is no change, so far as our new Chief Executive revealed himself in taking office, in the direction and objective of our foreign policy. The farewell messages of Harry Truman and the inaugural address of Dwight D. Eisenhower were in the same pattern. There was no break there. Alike they were in recognition of the nature of the world crisis—"Freedom is pitted against slavery, light against dark," as our new President expressed it. Alike they were in the confident belief that with courage and patience we can win in this struggle, and win it without another world war. Alike they were in the conviction of the necessity of allies, of helping those allies in all possible ways, including keeping open the channels of trade so they can sell to us and thus help to finance themselves. Alike they were in assuring our friends in the free nations everywhere that we are unafraid in our leadership, or, as President Eisenhower put it:

"We wish our friends the world over to know this above all: We face the threat—not with dread and confusion—but with confidence and conviction."

Alike also in the farewells of Harry Truman and the first words of President Eisenhower was reliance upon the United Nations—"the living sign of all people's hope for peace," the new Chief Executive called it. And alike also was the determination to strengthen the United Nations; to make it, as our new President said, "not merely an eloquent symbol but an effective force."

Thus the President hurled his challenge at those among us who, in recent weeks and months, have been preaching disillusion about the UN.

This form of intolerance, which can only be disheartening to our allies everywhere, he condemned by implication. More directly he condemned another sort of intolerance, which likewise dims the light we hold before the world, when he said that the faith that rules our whole way of life "warns that any man who seeks to deny equality in all his brothers betrays the spirit of the free and invites the mockery of the tyrant."

At his back, figuratively, as he delivered his inaugural was his real problem—Congress, which sits in the Capitol. What he outlined in general terms does not meet with the approval of many in that legislative body, as is well known: that is, if he means what he seemed to be saying in his message. That will be the battleground to try his mettle, and try it as severely as it ever was tried on the field of real battle.

Eisenhower Administration Is Urged To Continue 'Point Four' Program

Atlanta—The Point Four Program, initiated by our government and covering by survey some 35 nations, is truly inspiring.

If the incoming administration is going to be judged on its ability to reduce governmental expenditures, such as the Point Four Program, we will find this is false economy, for no better investment could be made than to increase expenditures in this field, as well as in the field of research so as to hurry the day when we can find the cure for polio, cancer, heart disease, etc.

We are prepared to spend liberally to eradicate hog diseases or some blight on trees, but we have sorely neglected our own citizens, our most valuable asset.

March of Dimes Gets Lift From Druid Hills Schoolers

Atlanta—Last week Mrs. Haynie's sixth grade class at Druid Hills school joined the March of Dimes drive against polio. We collected from house to house and everyone entered into it with enthusiasm. The amount on Monday was small. Tuesday two boys and two girls walked into the room at about the same time with $20.

Someone suggested we challenge the other sixth grades and the boom started. Little did we dream that we would have collected as much as we did. At present we have $105.45 and our dimes are rolling in.

Court Decision in Contempt Case Protects Rights of the Reader, Too

Contempt of court citations against editors are usually based on editorials or news articles that are printed in newspapers. Such citations are, in most instances, arbitrary enough, but it remained for Judge H. E. Nichols of Floyd County, Ga., to find a new kind of arbitrariness. He cited two editors for contempt because they did not print photographs as he demanded, in connection with a highway safety campaign.

The defendant journalists are now fully vindicated. The Georgia Supreme Court, speaking through its Chief Justice, W. H. Duckworth, has upheld the right of an editor to resist an order from a judge to print a specific picture or news article. Says Georgia's highest court:

If a worthy judge may employ the contempt of court process to silence unjust criticism of his official conduct, this same rule would enable an unworthy judge to silence the press in just criticism of his official conduct.

Free speech and liberty of the press in our system of popular government are diametrically opposed to any theory that any public officer shall be immune to criticism and searching examination of his official conduct.

This is a victory not for freedom of the press so much as it is for the right of the reader to be protected from arbitrary decrees by officials. In standing their ground Editors McGill and Fields have widened the area of press rights now known to be guarded against trespass.

The Post-Dispatch, which won an important contempt of court fight in the Missouri Supreme Court in 1940, salutes The Atlanta Constitution and its editors.

(Editor's Note: Other press comment on the decision follows:)

Savannah Morning News

The Atlanta Constitution has done a public service in laying bare some of the facts in regard to highway safety in this state. Some of these facts make unpleasant reading for the individuals closely concerned with them. The Atlanta newspaper has printed the truth nevertheless and "let the chips fall where they may."

The Supreme Court decision, under the circumstances, maintains the right of all our newspapers to attack this vital traffic problem armed with the weapons of unhampered truth.

Dayton (Ohio) Daily News

Since freedom of the press means not only the freedom of newspaper owners and publishers to print but also the freedom of the people to know, the Georgia Supreme Court has struck an even more powerful blow for the public than it has struck for the press. It has struck a blow for the judiciary, too—for no judicial system can keep or deserve the confidence of the people once it begins to insulate itself from criticism.

Columbus Enquirer

The decision rendered in the case appealed by two Atlanta Constitution editors is reassuring to all who believe that the press should not be gagged and that newspapers must not be forced to obey a judge and publish what he orders published.

The Brantley Enterprise

To hold any other view than that the courts, too, are subject to criticism, is to hold that this department of our government is somehow divorced from democratic processes and that the people have abdicated their sovereignty over one of the main branches of our government of "checks and balances."

Chief Justice Duckworth has rendered a real service to our system of government by calling attention to the fact that the courts are not kings who can do no wrong, but that they are subject to the same democratic processes of scrutiny and criticism as are the other two main departments of government.

Macon Telegraph

The principle that judges are not above honest, sincere criticism by the press has been more firmly established than ever by the action of the Georgia Supreme Court in clearing two executives of The Atlanta Constitution of charges of contempt in the Rome Superior Court.

Mr. Chief Justice Duckworth did not leave any doubt that the doctrine of "the king can do no wrong" does not prevail in the United States.

Keep High Goals Always in Mind

There is a verse in the Bible which warns: "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (1 Cor. 10:12). In baseball there is an expression: "The game is never over until the last man is out." In the building of life, complete victory is never won until the life is over. So the 10th step in the "Program of Recovery" is: "Continue to Take Personal Inventory and When We Were Wrong Promptly Admit It." The way to win in life is to fix within our minds the goal and keep moving toward it. As Tennyson expressed it: "And oh for a man to rise in me, That the man I am, May cease to be." There is a legend of a prince with a crooked back who said to his most skillful sculptor: "Make a statue of me, but with a straight back. I would see myself as I might have been."

When the statue was finished the prince put it in a secret place and every day slipped away to look earnestly at it. Months passed and people noticed the prince's back was not as crooked as it used to be. He continued to look at the perfect statue and each time the sight of it set his blood tingling and his heart throbbing, until one day he realized his back was straight.

One of the greatest of writers was Robert Louis Stevenson. Once he wrote to a friend: "For 14 years I have not had one day of real health. I have wakened sick and gone to bed weary, and yet I have done my work unflinchingly. I have written my books in bed and out of bed, written them when I was worn by coughing, written them during hemorrhages, written them when my head swam from weakness. But the battle goes on—ill or well is a trifle so long as it goes."

In an alcoholic hospital I met a man who told me a familiar story. For seven years he had remained sober. Then one night he was walking home from work with a friend, who suggested they stop for a beer. He intended to get only a soft drink but when he saw the beer he decided that just one would not hurt him. He drank that beer and now for four years he has been struggling to get on the drinkless trail again.

It is so easy to be thrown off guard. Rarely does one deliberately plan to fail, but something happens. Our feelings get hurt, a great sorrow may come, we may have a streak of bad luck, or we get lonely or sorry for ourselves. And in a moment's time all the fine victories we have worked so hard to win can be swept away. So we must continue to watch our weakness and keep our eyes firmly fixed on a high goal.

Leo Aikman

Never Get Fired For Nothing

From his father's poultry house and ice plant, when the wind was right the boy almost could hear the clickety-click-click of the telegraph key at the railroad station. How he cherished the day when he was first invited inside the station with its cozy waiting room and "cannon" stove, its ticket window and the railing behind which was the telegraph board in a bay window. From his position at the key, the operator could see up and down the tracks, eastward to where the rails dipped into the Wabash Valley on the way to the state capital, westward straight as a string to the Illinois prairies. The boy listened quietly as Agent Charlie Peters swapped stories with the traveling men who came to Dana on the Indianapolis, Decatur and Western. There came that glad day when "Pete" asked him into the inner sanctum behind the railing and let him finger the magic key. Right then the boy decided on his career—he was going to be a railroad man.

He took to the code as if he and not Morse had devised it. His mentor said the youngster was exceptionally quick to learn, had a remarkable memory, never forgot a face or a fact.

The boy was soon sending and receiving. When he was 17 and out of high school, the railroad gave him a regular job—telegraph operator at a gravel pit. The railroad could use bright young men. At 19, the telegrapher became a train dispatcher. His first night on the job the second-trick man gave him advice he never forgot: "Boy, if you ever get fired, get fired for doing something; never get fired for doing nothing."

The boy did things and went places—from train dispatcher to division superintendent, to general superintendent of the road. When he was 43 he became president of the New Jersey Central and hence the youngest railway head in the country. Seven years later he took time out to return to telegraphy, as president of Western Union. In 1941, he went back to the rails, as chief executive of the nation's oldest steam railway system.

The principal in this real-life "Alger" story is Col. Roy. B. White, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

I can't remember when "our town" wasn't talking about Roy White. I met the man, for the first time, this week here in Atlanta, thanks to thoughtful Lex Irwin, the B. & O. district freight representative.

He's big, this boy telegrapher grown up into the 69-year-old chief of one of the nation's greatest rail networks. He's big business! But not too big to extend a warm hand to a younger son of his native soil and to say, "You're Burch Aikman's boy. I knew your father and your grandfather."

Roy White had a remarkable memory for names and such, his Morse code mentor said 50 years ago. He's never been fired for doing nothing. What he has done, he has done right well. He's still doing. His Atlanta mission was strictly business—service and sales.

Legislators Study Budget Juggling

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Governor Talmadge has recommended virtually the same total budget for the next two years that the state is currently using, but the governor has done some juggling with the new budget. He has added more than $3,000,000 to some state agencies in the "regular" section of the budget, too. To "hold the line" at approximately $230,000,000, he has subtracted more than $3,000,000 from other state agencies.

Legislative reaction to the governor's budget message was that the line should be held at $230,000,000 for the "regular" budget — but several legislators figure on trying some juggling of the governor's recommendations within that total. Chiefly, this group wants to put into the "regular" budget the pay increases which teachers have earned under provisions of the Minimum Foundation Program for Education (not the 10 per cent over-all pay hike).

M. L. St. John

SEEK TEACHERS' FUND

This would cost $2,500,000. To get this item into a $230,000,000 budget, the representatives will have to slice $2,500,000 off other state services. They will take a look at the $3,000,000-plus increase suggested by the governor.

First off, they will see that $2,000,000 of the increase is earmarked for school buildings, $600,000 for teacher retirement, and $23,000 gain for operation of the State Department of Education. They probably wouldn't want to change these recommendations. However, there are those who feel it more important to carry out the promises to teachers who went to summer school to earn higher degrees than it is to add more to the building fund, even as important as buildings are.

That leaves only about $1,000,000 increase to play with. The biggest increases in this is a $125,000 increase for the operation of the Legislature, itself; a $150,000 increase for the Forestry Department, and a $125,000 increase for the Revenue Department.

MAY STUDY DETAILS

The representatives may want to look at the details of these and the following other increases recommended by the governor. Here are the increases: Banking department, $10,000; Georgia Citizens Council, $15,000; Comptroller-General, $25,000; Game and Fish, $78,000; Mines, $22,500; Parks, $20,000; Corrections Department, board office operations, $15,000; Supreme Court operations, $20,000; Court of Appeals operations, $50,000; Superior Court operations, $31,600; Labor, $15,000; Library, $3,750.

Milk Control Board, $10,000; Pharmacy Board, $16,000; Public Defense operations, $50,000; Health, $20,000; Public Safety, $32,000; Public Service Commission, $60,000; Welfare Department operations, $30,000; Welfare institutions operations, $20,000; Secretary of State examining boards, $25,000; archives and history, $15,000, and other Secretary of State operations, $25,000; Purchasing Department, $10,000; Veterans Service Department, $36,000, and Workmen's Compensation, $30,000.

Should the representative knock out all the increases the governor proposes, except those going to education, they still would have to search the "regular" budget furthr to find an additional $1,150,000 for the earned teacher pay hike. Perhaps they could find other agencies to cut, or even abolish. Perhaps not.

Bill Proposes Egg-Grading Law Changes

Larger eggs for Georgia consumers will be sought in a pending House bill designed to prevent the state from becoming a "dumping ground" for inferior grades.

Rep. Alpha Fowler of Douglas County, author, said the proposal would add one-half of an ounce to the requirements for two classifications, making the minimum weight for "medium" eggs 21 ounces a dozen and the minimum for "small" eggs 18 ounces a dozen.

A new grade, "pee wee," would be established under the bill to include those weighing 15 ounces a dozen and to exclude any single egg of less than one and one-sixth ounces.

The changes would bring the state's grading law in line with those of surrounding states and the federal government, Fowler said, thus preventing out-of-state producers from sending smaller eggs here.

Written as an amendment to the present grading law, the proposal would not alter the requirement that "fresh" eggs must be Georgia produced or the rule that restaurants must print the origin of their eggs on menus or display placards, Fowler explained.

Solon Would Outlaw Drunk Boat Drivers

Intoxicated or reckless boat operators would be outlawed on Georgia lakes under a proposal which Rep. Floyd Tumlin of Bartow County will introduce in the state House of Representatives Thursday.

Representative Tumlin said such action was necessary to cut down the number of boat mishaps and accidental drownings at Allatoona and other lakes.

The bill provides that wildlife rangers and peace officers could make arrests.

Bills To Protect Livestock Spotlighted in Assembly

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

In line with Georgia's new eminence as a livestock raising state, the General Assembly Wednesday broke out in a rash of bills designed to protect cattle, hogs and chickens—and the owners of same—from rabies, rustlers and motorists.

Rep. Edward E. McGarity, a dairy farmer from Henry County, prepared to introduce a bill which would empower the Game and Fish Commission to quarantine rabid wild animals, declare year-round open season on them and pay $25,000 to $50,000 in bounties for their extermination.

At the same time Sen. Robert H. Jordan of Talbotton introduced a bill in the Senate which would increase the punishment for cattle stealing from a maximum of four years to a maximum of 20 years—the penalty for manslaughter.

Senator Jordan would leave the punishment for hog stealing at two to four years, a penalty which Sen. Grady N. Coker of Canton—would extend to cover chicken stealing.

Already in the hopper of the House is a bill by Representatives John C. Bell and William W. Holley of Richmond, Rep. Walter Harrison of Jenkins and Rep. William Hicks Key of Jasper, providing for a statewide livestock law, "embracing all public roads of the State of Georgia" and all domestic animals in the "equine, bovine or swine class."

Representative McGarity said his rabies bill would save thousands of dollars in livestock increasingly menaced by rabid wild animals but he emphasized that his primary concern was the lives of human beings.

Senator Coker, amending the hog and cattle rustling penalty to include chickens, pointed out that the chicken industry flourishes in North Georgia and that it has suffered tremendous losses from thieves.

While the General Assembly's 30 or 40 dairy and beef cattle raisers hit a lick at rabies and rustlers, a group of 16 of them, headed by Rep. B. C. Gardner Jr., of Dougherty County, introduced a bill in the House to put control of livestock sanitation under an 11-member board. It was a move which would strip Agriculture Commissioner Tom Linder of so-called "arbitrary powers." The 11-member board, with Linder serving as chairman, would have quarantine powers now held by Linder.

Public's Ideas on State's Appropriation Bill Sought

A public hearing of Governor Talmadge's proposed appropriation bill will take place next Wednesday.

Rep. Herschel Lovett of Laurens County, chairman of the House appropriations committee, announced that the public is invited to appear before the committee at 2:30 p. m. in the House chambers and give suggestions on the bill.

He said the committee later likely will review the proposed budget, item by item.

At Wednesday's meeting of the Legislature, the House voted, 83 to 73, to reconsider a bill to provide retirement for members of the Public Service Commission. It had failed to pass the bill Tuesday.

The House voted, 114 to 30, to give the old Negro Academy for the Blind in Macon to the Bibb County Board of Education for use as a library for Negroes. Representative Lovett, who had objected, said he will ask reconsideration.

The House ways and means committee will meet after adjournment Thursday to consider suggested changes in the sales tax law. Chairman Jack Ray said members of a special tax subcommittee and representatives of the State Revenue Department will meet with the committee.

The Senate and House will adjourn Thursday for the weekend.

Women Support Measure To Bar Roadside Ads

Abolishment of advertising on public highway rights-of-way will be asked Monday in a General Assembly proposal supported by the 17,000-member Georgia Garden Clubs, Inc.

Mrs. Steve Tate of Jasper, president of the association, and Mrs. Charles Hardy of Gainesville, chairman of its roadside beautification committee, said Wednesday they had received "much encouragement from members of the legislature."

The bill, which will be sponsored by several legislators, will not interfere with lessors of private lands for advertising purposes.

Bill Seeks Certificates For Autos

Proposed legislation that would enact an automobile certificate of title law will be given a public hearing before the motor vehicles committee of the House Monday immediately following adjournment, according to Rep. Ben Wiggins of Toccoa.

Wiggins, author of the proposal, said the bill is opposed by new car dealers, who "fear the cost of the extra paper work involved in a certified title to their customers." Georgia and Atlanta used car dealers' associations, PTA leaders, municipal and peace officers associations and insurance groups are supporting the bill.

Scheduled to appear before the committee is Lt. J. L. Tuggle of the Atlanta police department's larceny squad. According to state peace officers, Georgia is regarded as a "haven" for bootleg automobiles, stolen vehicles and automobile rings.

Representative Wiggins says adoption of the legislation will result in "lower car insurance rates, reduce stolen cars or illegally sold cars and facilitate recovery of stolen cars."

Argentine Eye on Ike

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 21—(INS)—News of President Eisenhower's inauguration monopolized attention in the Argentine press today amid editorially expressed hopes of improved relations between the United States and President Juan Peron's regime.

Now Engel's Training Umps

For what it's worth: And whatever became of the sucker shift? It passed on in comparative peace during that St. Petersburg furor, but the coaches were so platoon-struck they had no comment. . . . Buck Martin is looking toward Canada for a pro football connection. He'll talk contract with Peahead Walker this week end and may sign on at Montreal. . . . Sometimes-You-Never-Know Dept.: Marty Marion brings the St. Louis Cards home third in '51 and gets fired. Eddie Stanky repeats that finish in '52 and becomes Manager of the Year. Confused?

What's this? Joe Engel's running an umpiring school in St. Augustine, Fla.? I suppose he's training them to call 'em as they see 'em from the roof of the grandstand. That's where Joe does his best second guessing in Chattanooga. . . . Jimmy Foxx is coming out of oblivion to be the chief instructor at a baseball school in Newton, N. C. It's for players and umpires both. . . . Hottest basketball score of the season: Ashburn 53, West Crisp 42.

Bisher

From Jan. 24 until March 15, Daytona Beach, Fla., will celebrate the "Golden Anniversary of Speed." You can find it celebrated on any highway these days. . . . Remember when all the automobile speed records were being broken on Daytona's broad beach, and when a racer named Frank Lockhart lost control of his car, drove into the sea and drowned? . . . When 20-year-old Bullet Joe Bush won the fourth game of the 1913 World Series for the Athletics he became the youngest Series winner in history.

Before the football season started, Murray Warmath appeared to be rather happy to agree with visiting firemen that Mississippi State wouldn't be winning any pennants, and that the prospects were rather dim. . . . Now the season is done, State has been a surprise and Warmath claims he knew it all the time. He could have been the leading seer since Nostradamus if he'd have picked it that way.

—Among Bowl Alumni: One Deputy Sheriff

Ever wonder what becomes of bowl game athletes? The NCAA has got out a book on it, and of those out of college, business executives and office workers lead with 99, coaches 57, teachers 49, salesmen 28 and pro football players 16. . . . There are only five insurance salesmen, four farmers, one carpenter, one labor relations expert and three FBI agents. Oh yes, one deputy sheriff, who's probably in training for Hollywood horse oprys.

Leon Culberson, the short-time Cracker of '50 and one-time Red Sox outfielder, will try baseball from a new angle in '53. The roaming Roman is the new business manager at Greensboro, N. C. . . . Name of the week: Matt Ring, boxing and wrestling writer for a Philadelphia paper. . . . The people in Cornelia want the rest of the state to know that they're proud of the coaching job Gene Alexander did at South Habersham High School last season, and I'm happy to oblige. In honor of the 7-3 record, the Chamber of Commerce printed a tribute to the team and distributed it around town.

President Bob Carpenter on salary dealings with the Phillies: "Willie's (Jones) not hard to get along with. He knew he had a bad year and had to pay for it. . . . Del (Ennis) doesn't upset me. It's one or two guys who are alibi artists. . . . One guy in particular can do more tricks with statistics than a certified public accountant. . . . A couple of other guys know they can burn me up. Gran Hamner always gets under my skin."

—Tulane Conducts a Class 'Down Under'

Whatever became of Joey Giardello's suit against Bob Christenberry? . . . While tennistar Ham Richardson was in Australia, he was still a student at Tulane. He carried along a small library of school books and kept up with his work in spare hours. . . . Well, now that he's on the job, I guess Ike's days as a golfer are done until he's ex-president Eisenhower.

Sugar Ray Robinson's impact on show biz has lessened considerably, I understand. He packed a great deal more wallop in his hands than in his feet. . . . To L. M. Meyer, Winterville: Your narrow-minded attitude is typical of a small minority that reflects dishonor on the state. As long as a man is a creditable athlete, he'll find room on our pages, no matter what his race. . . . Cracker Billy Smith has been ordered to spring training with Milwaukee, but chances are the versatile little man will return to Ponce de Leon.

Of the big football switch, 5-5, 129-pound Tad Weed of Ohio State says: "I guess that puts me out of a job." He was the field-goal kicking specialist who beat Northwestern. . . . And whatever became of Sandy Sanford, who kicked Alabama into a Rose Bowl game? . . . Coach Clyde Lee of Houston U. sent Ken Pridgeon into the Salad Bowl game last year to kick out of bounds from his own 25-yard line. Pridgeon slitthered one off his foot out of bounds at his own 27. The pained Lee managed a weak smile as Pridgeon came off the field and said: "That's all right, Ken, but next time don't follow my instructions so closely." . . . Selah.

Polly Riley Medalist In Doherty Tourney

MIAMI, Jan. 21—(INS)—Sturdy Polly Riley of Fort Worth, who won the Helen Lee Doherty tournament once and finished once as runner-up, Wednesday became its medalist for the first time by carving out a two-over women's par 74 in the qualifying round of the Women's Amateur tourney at the Miami Country Club.

Miss Riley, who won the event in 1950 and just missed a year later, skidded to a 39 on the first nine holes of the 6,008-yard layout, but came back in a 35.

She is competing in the Doherty for the eighth time.

A score of 87 was good enough to land in the 32-woman championship flight, but a five-way playoff was held to fill the 32nd berth for Thursday's match play.

The veteran Texan's efforts were one stroke better than those of 22-year-old Cookie Swift of Great Neck, L. I., who came in with 75.

Bea McWane of Birmingham and Carol Gallagher of West Palm Beach pulled up at 77, while Bonnie Randolph of Columbus, Ohio, and Vonnie Colby of Dania, Fla., finished with 78's.

Polly Riley Dot Kirby

Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., the defending champion, decided to forego the qualifying chores when she awoke with a headache.

Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore shot a 79, and Barbara Romack of Sacramento and former winner Claire Doran of Cleveland carded 80's.

Turner Leads Comeback; Morocco Scores 28 Points

By EDWIN POPE
Constitution Sports Writer

AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 21—Playmaker Jack Turner whipped a spark back into Auburn's lagging Plainsmen in the fourth quarter Wednesday night and engineered a 78-69 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over the Georgia Bulldogs.

For three quarters, amazing shooting by Captain Zippy Morocco, behind fine screening by fired-up teammates, kept the underdogs from Athens in the thick of the fight. Red Lawson's men led, 57-55, as the fourth period opened. But Turner, a block-shouldered junior from Birmingham who has been the steadiest operator in an erratic Auburn machine, blasted through a long set shot, another push from sidecourt, and then tipped in a wild field effort by Jim Martin to send the Plainsmen off on a 61-58 lead they were in no mood to relinquish.

It was the second triumph in four SEC starts for Joel Eaves' tall, deep squad and may have heralded their expected drive toward championship contention.

For Georgia, the defeat was No. 6 in succession within the conference. And still it failed to dull the sheen of the 5-11 Morocco's consistently brilliant performance. The dark-eyed wraith from Ohio, pumping away from every conceivable position, hit five of his first eight shots from the field and concluded his 15th game of the season with 28 points on ten field goals and eight free throws. His first eight foul shots were good.

The lead changed hands seven times before Auburn took it for good with nine minutes to play.

Morocco's opening eight-point outburst in eight minutes gave Georgia a 17-14 advantage near the end of the first period, but two pivot shots and a free throw by Miller gave Auburn a 19-18 lead at the end of the quarter.

Georgia was out front again, 31-28, with four minutes to play in the half, but minute-man Turner slipped in five quick points. Bill Kirkpatrick two more and Bob Fenn a singleton to give the Plainsmen a 36-35 halftime margin.

Morocco, Potts and Bill Shain fronted a comeback charge that had Georgia in command, 47-42, at five minutes of the third and then the Plainsmen began to hack away at the lead. Turner's final impetus pushed Auburn ahead to stay.

It was Auburn's ninth win in 12 games, and left Georgia holding the bag with only four victories against 11 losses.

Moomaw Says No Pro Ball Due to Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21—(AP)—Donn Moomaw, all-American linebacker of UCLA, said Wednesday he is not interested in being drafted for pro football, since he will be unavailable for at least three years.

Moomaw explained that he must remain in school through February, 1954, in order to obtain his degree and qualify for a commission in the Air Force. After that he faces two years of active duty.

DEAN AND SIMMONS GET HALL OF FAME BERTHS

By CARL LUNDQUIST

New York, Jan. 21—(AP)—Dizzy Dean, former fastball ace of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Bucketfoot Al Simmons, the Philadelphia Athletics' one-time slugging star, were voted into baseball's Hall of Fame Wednesday.

Bill Terry, ex-Giant first baseman, barely missed the same honor by falling eight votes short of the required 198 votes needed to gain a place in baseball's shrine at Cooperstown, N. Y. Former Yankee Joe DiMaggio wound up eighth, 81 votes shy of the goal. A record number of 264 ballots were cast by the senior members of the Baseball Writers of America.

Dean, who joined the Cardinals in 1932, won 30 games for them two years later and led the National League in strikeouts from 1932 through 1935, polled 209 votes among the 624 cast by members of the association who have been in 10 or more years.

To be elected, a candidate needed 198 votes—75 per cent of the total vote.

Simmons, who compiled a lifetime batting average of .342 despite the fact that he moved his front foot away from the plate when he was hitting, was elected by one of the narrowest margins in history—one extra vote. He received 199 votes.

The colorful, garrulous Dean and the husky, solemn Simmons thus became the 63d and 64th members of the Hall of Fame.

Terry, who finished third in last year's balloting with 155 votes, wound up in the same position today although he collected 191 votes. Dear and Simmons finished fourth and fifth last year.

Bill Dickey, ex-Yankee catcher and current coach for the same club, was fourth with 179 votes while Rabbit Maranville, Boston Brave shortstop who played from about 1910 to the early 30's, rounded out the five with 164 votes.

Dazzy Vance, the Dodgers' fireball pitcher of 25 years ago, finished sixth with 150 votes, followed by Ted Lyons, ex-White Sox pitcher, with 139 votes.

DiMaggio, in eighth place with 117 points, was eligible for election to the Hall for the first time in his career, since he concluded his active days in 1951. Although he is conceded almost certain to be elected eventually, many writers left him off the ballot, concentrating on older players whose chances are diminishing.

Simmons, Dean Both 'Amazed'

Condensed From Wire Reports

News of the highest honor that can befall a professional baseball player, was greeted by Al Simmons and Dizzy Dean as "the greatest thing" that has happened to them.

Simmons had double reasons for celebration: he had triple winners at Hialeah Race Track as well as being selected for the Hall of Fame.

"I owe it all to Connie Mack," Simmons was quoted.

In San Francisco, Dizzy Dean proclaimed amazement. Met by newsmen as he and his wife arrived by plane from Dallas on a business trip, Dean said the honor was completely unexpected.

"I saw all those flash bulbs and wondered if Eisenhower wuz around. It's the happiest day of my life."

Line: Spivey Feared Losing His Friends

Jury Hears Teammate Claim He Urged a Full Confession

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—A former teammate testified Wednesday that Bill Spivey, former University of Kentucky all-America basketball player, feared losing his friends if he admitted participation in the basketball "fix" scandal.

Spivey is on trial on a perjury charge for denying before a grand jury that he discussed fixes or accepted bribes to juggle point scores for the benefit of gamblers.

Jim Line, the former teammate, said he went to Birmingham, Ala., last February and spent a day and a half urging the seven-foot tall center to "tell the truth" to the grand jury.

Line said Spivey told him "the people of Kentucky believed him innocent and he would lose his friends if he changed his story about denying everything."

He quoted Spivey as saying:

"If I am convicted without admitting it, lots of people would believe me innocent."

Line said he arranged the Birmingham meeting with Spivey by telephone from New York. He said he told Spivey that he (Line) had told the grand jury all he knew about arrangements made with West to rig scores of Kentucky games.

The witness said he told Spivey he did not believe Spivey would be indicted for perjury if he went back to New York and told the truth to the grand jury.

Line, who described himself as a contact man between gambler Jack West and Spivey, testified earlier that Spivey agreed with West before the 1950-51 season to accept $1,000 for each game in which Kentucky held a score below an agreed figure.

He said Spivey agreed to accept $100 a game in cases where the margin exceeded the agreed-upon figure.

Plainsmen Sign Grid Aces From N. Y., Tennessee

AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 21—Auburn has brought its list of football grant-in-aid signees to 29. Latest acquisitions include the outstanding back in the state of New York and the top halfback in east Tennessee.

Head Coach Ralph Jordan said Fritz Cutspec, 195-pound fullback from N. Tarrytown who was an all-Metropolitan New York choice, and Jim Shelton, 195-pound Oak Ridge fullback who won the Knoxville Journal trophy as most valuable back in east Tennessee, have inked Plainsman grants.

Two Georgians, Hogansville end Frank Reeves and Newnan halfback Don Stephens, have been added to Auburn's list. Reeves, 6-3 and 190 pounds, was voted outstanding lineman in Georgia Class B football. Stephens, a 6-1, 180-pounder, played quarterback at McCallie School in Chattanooga after starring at Newnan in 1951.—POPE.

NFL Keeps Status Quo In Grid Code

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21—(AP)—The National Football League rules committee decided Wednesday to keep the pro grid code intact for the 1953 season.

Among the more drastic proposals that went down the drain at the session—part of the NFL's annual meeting—were:

A boost from six to seven points the tally for a touchdown, with the point after touchdown eliminated.

The sudden death playoff for all regular season tie games—with the victory going to the first team to score a TD or field goal.

NFL Commissioner Bert Bell, who offered some of the suggested changes either on his own or on behalf of league members, repeatedly has said—and he repeated that belief here—that the public wants wide open football. To make any major changes in the loop's rules might cut down on crowd appeal.

Northwest Scores In Golden Gloves

Wins 11 of 20 Crowns In Finals at Marietta

Special to The Constitution

MARIETTA, Jan. 21—R. H. Hilley and M. L. Hicks had every reason to be proud of their Northwest Boys Club representation in the Georgia Golden Gloves finals Wednesday night. Their boys took 11 out of 20 titles and four of the winners will represent Atlanta in the Southern meet in Nashville, Feb. 9-11.

Two of the Northwest champs are defending titlists, Ken Pruitt, a flyweight in the novice class, and Ed Morgan, a featherweight in the open division.

Other defending champs who came through again this year are Jacek Ast, Polish refugee, now living in Marietta, who captured the light-heavyweight in the novice; Curtis Phillips, Larry Bell Center middleweight in the open division, and Herb Burkhalter, whose heavyweight title went unchallenged in the meet.

Morgan adds to his laurels title number four in a career that has brought him the flyweight crown (1950), bantam (1951) and featherweight (1952). A Grady High senior, Morgan has been battling since he first slipped on the gloves at seven years of age.

Two other titles went unchallenged, with Felton Mulkey, Rome, retaining his heavyweight crown in the novice, and Troy Leonard, LaGrange, keeping his lightheavy title in the subnovice.

The novice lightweight championship will be decided between Ronnie Jones, Griffin, and Wayne Kirkland, Rome, at a later date. Both men advanced to the semi-finals Wednesday night.

Open Division

SUB NOVICE DIVISION

NOVICE DIVISION

Robert Miley, Griffin Recreation Club, over Billy Lucus, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, Rome, decision in flyweight class. Stan Bowers, Toccoa, over Jack Duncan, USMC Reserve, Rome, decision in bantamweight class. Howard Skeine, Northwest Boys Club, over Marek Ast, Larry Bell center, decision in featherweight class. Ronnie Jones, Griffin, won by default over Gene Mayhew, Griffin, in lightweight class. Wayne Kirkland, USMC Reserves, Rome, over Johnny Wall, Northwest Boys Club, decision in lightweight class. George Sadler, Atlanta Boys Club, over Rondell Tike, Dixie Recreation, KO in 40 seconds, second round in welterweight class. Dick Hickman of Northwest Boys Club, won by default over Carlton Purdue, Griffin, in middleweight. Segura Takes 12th Straight In Net Tour

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21—(AP)—Jack Kramer utilized two timely service breaks Wednesday night to edge Frank Sedgman, 7-5, 6-4, in the feature match of his professional tennis tour's appearance at Cincinnati Garden.

Pancho Segura, the five-foot, seven mighty mite from Ecuador who currently holds the professional championship, blasted the other Aussie star, Ken McGregor, 6-1, 6-3, for his 12th straight triumph on the tour.

The Americans completed the evening's sweep in the final match when Kramer and Segura downed Sedgman and McGregor, 6-4, 6-8, 6-4, to square the doubles series at six victories for each team.

Kid Gavilan Draws Unanimous Decision Over Outclassed Foe

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan, the bolo-punching specialist from Havana, Cuba, pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision Wednesday night over the game but outclassed Vic Cardell of Hartford, Conn.

Gavilan weighed 152 pounds for the nontitle bout; Cardell 149. Gavilan won every round, landed the hardest blows and looked like the champion all the way.

But Cardell fought back courageously, and even in the last round, when he was hopelessly beaten, he still was rushing in, hoping to connect with a winning punch.

The way the referee and the judges saw the fight pretty well sums up the bout: Judge Benny Alperstein, 99 points for Gavilan, 74 for Cardell; Judge Julian Whitestone, Gavilan 99, Cardell 81; referee Harry Volkman, Gavilan 100, Cardell 72. Since 100 is the maximum a fighter can score, Gavilan came within two points of getting a perfect report card.

But Cardell put up such a spirited fight there were some boos when the verdict was announced. Even though Cardell was in repeated trouble, Gavilan was never able to knock him down, much less out.

In the eighth Gavilan hit Cardell so hard that he dropped his defense and appeared helpless for a moment. But, surprisingly, Gavilan did not follow it up, and the bell then saved Cardell from possible serious damage.

The bout televised nationally, was a charity promotion by the women of B'nai B'rith. It attracted a crowd of approximately 7,000.

Bevo, Rio Grande Play Four for March of Dimes

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis Wednesday announced that the Rio Grande College basketball team, featuring Clarence (Bevo) Francis, the nation's leading scorer, will play four games for the benefit of the March of Dimes fund.

The organization said that the first game will be held Friday at the Dayton (Ohio) Arena against the Cincinnati Bible Seminary and the fourth against St. Francis College of Brooklyn at New York's Sunnyside Garden, March 13. The other two games have not been arranged yet.

Demaret Fires 67, Wins Thunderbird

Hogan, Mangrum, Turnesa Tie for 2d With 203 Totals

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Jan. 21—(AP)—Smiling Jimmy Demaret emerged on top in a battle of golf's greatest players Wednesday and won the $10,000 Thunderbird Country Club Invitational tournament with a final round of 67 and a 15-under-par total of 201 for the 54-hole event.

But it was Demaret, playing just ahead, who slipped in to post a score of 69-65-67—201 and pocket the $1,500 first prize.

Ben Hogan Jim Demaret

Hogan, making one of his rare tournament appearances, wound up with 65-69-69—203, in a tie with Mangrum who had a 69-65-69, and Jim Turnesa with 66-68-69.

Nelson, who plays even less in tournaments than Hogan these days, settled with rounds of 68-68-70—206.

Demaret played the par 36-36—72 Thunderbird course in 33-34—67 and came home free, despite the challenge from Hogan, Mangrum and other noted players.

The tournament was staged as a special event by wealthy members of the club in this desert resort and the 30 invited professionals had a field day over the 6,600-yard course.

Major part of the gallery followed the Hogan-Mangrum-Nelson threesome, and it looked for a time that one of them might capture the tournament. Nelson and Mangrum were one under par for the first nine and Ben, who is winter pro at neighboring Tamarisk Country Club here, was even. He birdied three of the first five on the back nine, but as happened Tuesday, his putts got up to the cup and stopped.

This was no vacation performance by any of the pros, including Hogan. The Texan was in no light mood when a putt refused to sink out of sight.

Cary Middlecoff, former National Open champion from Memphis with a 67, finished with 204. One stroke behind him was Doug Ford, Harrison, N. Y., with a 68.

Tied with Nelson at 206 were Harrison with a 72; Ed Oliver, who is now playing out of Palm Springs, 68; Jerry Barber, La Canada, Calif., 68, and Johnny Bulla, Pittsburgh, 71.

Present National Open champion Julius Boros with a 68; Tommy Bolt, Maplewood, N. J., 69; and Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif., 70, were tied at 207.

It was Demaret's first victory since he won the celebrities and the Bing Crosby tournaments last year.

Scores and money won:

Jimmy Demaret, 69-65-67—201 ($1,500); Ben Hogan, 65-69-69—203 ($616.66); Jim Turnesa, 66-68-69—203 ($616.16); Lloyd Mangrum, 69-65-69—203 ($616.16); Cary Middlecoff, 70-67-67—204 ($450); Doug Ford, 68-69-68—205 ($400); Byron Nelson, 68-68-70—206 ($260); Ed Oliver, 68-70-68—206 ($260); Jerry Barber, 69-69-68—206 ($260); Johnny Bulla, 68-67-71—206 ($260); Dutch Harrison, 65-69-72—206 ($260); Tommy Bolt, 69-69-69—207 ($133); Julius Boros, 70-69-68—207 ($133); Jimmy Clark, 69-68-70—207 ($133); Pete Fleming, 76-66-75—208 ($100); Dick Mayer, 67-61-81—209 ($100); Lawson Little, 69-69-71—209 ($100); Ted Kroll, 67-71-72—210 ($100); Lew Worsham 68-71-71—210 ($100); Jim Ferrier, 68-71-72—211 ($100); Al Mengert, 67-72-72—211 ($100); Vic Ghezzie, 69-71-72—212 ($100); Jimmy Hines, 70-72-70—212 ($100); Al Brosch, 72-68-74—214 ($100); Bob Watson, 68-75-71—214 ($100); Dave Douglas, 74-74-67—215 ($100); Al Besselink, 73-72-70—215 ($100); Skee Riegel, 72-72-72—216 ($100); George Howard, 71-72-76—219 ($100); Jimmy Thomson, no card ($100).

ON THE TRAIL

By J. L. FRANKLIN

A YOUNG FRIEND of mine was following his pointer and setter across a field of sedge the other day. The dogs found birds, but the first target flushed peculiarly by towering almost straight into the air.

My friend has spent so many days afield that the antics of game never take him completely by surprise. He toppled the bird, but when a dog retrieved it and placed it in his hand, he realized that never before in his life had he beheld such a fowl.

The bird was the size of a quail but longer and thinner, and its bill was a full four inches long. The back feathers were gorgeous woodland browns interlaced with black markings. The breast, the softest buff; the stubby tail, when spread, black and white below.

My friend, of course, had killed his first woodcock and collected a morsel of dark meat as delicious as a dove.

Every winter Georgia is host to some of these birds, although Alabama and Louisiana get the largest concentrations. The birds nest far to the north, in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, New England and the Great Lakes regions.

An older friend of mine, who liked to take his quail hunting on the swamp edges of South Georgia, often pursued single birds into the creek bottoms. There his close-hunting Gordon setter, Coal, would likely come upon woodcock, and my friend would not appear for an hour or so. It seems that the "timberdoodle," as the woodcock is affectionately known, can do that to a man.

Woodcock hunting is a gamble at best. You may catch a migration squarely or you may pursue the birds for years with very little result. It will help to remember that 85 per cent of their diet is earthworms, that they cannot probe frozen or heavily frosted ground with their soft bills, and that they return to the same bogs and thickets every winter.

The season on timberdoodles ended only yesterday, but you can make your plans for the next migration.

Georgia's Hartman Lauds One Platoon

The abolition of the so-called two-platoon system will be a great boon to Georgia, Auburn and many other Southeastern Conference schools from a financial standpoint, a University of Georgia football coach declared Wednesday night.

Bill Hartman, backfield coach at the University of Georgia, a panel member on the WSB-TV program "Press Gallery," said the death of the free substitution rule will enable schools to curtail their player recruiting program, a major expense item under the outlawed system.

The former Bulldog backfield star said he believes the change "will tend to equalize competition in the Southeastern Conference."

Tonto Coleman, assistant athletic director at Georgia Tech, said his chief criticism the return to the "old" limited substitution rule is that fewer boys will get to play. He said Tech with its corps of light backs and specialists will be hit particularly hard.

The Tech coach took issue with the contention that two-platoon football has been forcing small colleges to give up the game. He pointed out that none of the schools which abandoned football in post-war years have indicated that they plan to return under NCAA's recent order.

Also participating in the weekly "Press Forum" program were Harry Mehre, Atlanta Journal columnist, and Journal Sports Editor Ed Danforth, who served as moderator.

Oil-Happy Pilots Unhappy Over Second Dry Well

STEPHENS, Ark., Jan. 21, (AP)—Major league baseball managers looking for added income from oil wells in South Arkansas gazed at a second successive dry hole Wednesday.

The baseball greats—including 14 major league managers—and Dick Burnett, millionaire oilman and owner of the Dallas club in the Texas League, struck out in their initial drilling, but they have since turned up two non-producers.

The Tom Cole No. 1, the latest dry hole, was abandoned at 3,800 feet Tuesday. Burnett is now moving to drill the C. E. Gosden No. 1, four miles southeast of here in Ouachita County.

Seixas, Three Aussies Gain Meet Semifinals

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 21. (AP)—America's Vic Seixas and three Australians gained the semi-finals of the South Australian tennis championships Wednesday but the newly crowned Australian champion, Ken Rosewall, failed to make the grade.

The 18-year-old Rosewall, winner of his nation's top prize last week, saw his game go stale against fellow countryman Rex Hartwig as he bowed, 6-1, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6.

Rosewall showed only flashes of the great tennis displayed in the nationals. Down4-5 in the fifth set, he saved three match points before Hartwig, a sharp volleyer, put over the kill.

Seixas, captain of the United States Davis Cup forces, displayed some of his finest form as he easily swept past Australia's Don Candy, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4, to join Hartwig, Mervyn Rose and young Lewis Hoad in the round of four.

Rose, the southpaw Davis Cupper, had to come from behind to eliminate Straight Clark of Los Angeles, 6-3, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. Hoad, who teamed with Rosewall to win the Australian doubles crown, trounced Italy's Fausto Gardini, 6-3, 8-6, 8-6.

America's net queen, Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly of San Diego, Calif., and her traveling companion, Julie Sampson of San Marino, Calif., moved into the semifinals of the women's singles division without exertion.

Austin and Mitchell Leading AA Scorers

Richmond's Allen Gaining On Atlanta Sharpshooters

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

North Fulton's Wade Mitchell tied Grady's Richard Austin for the leadership in state Class AA high school individual scoring, including games of last week end, but the most startling gain was made by Richmond Academy's Ray Allen, who poured in 34 points against Benedictine in one of his two outings of the week.

Allen, who has hit 40 field goals and 16 times from the free throw line, is hot on the heels of the leaders with a 19.2 average. Austin and Mitchell, with 20.4 averages for seven games, have scored 143 tallies each and will play against each other in a Friday game here.

Allen is almost certain to appear before Atlanta fans in The Constitution-sponsored state AA tournament at the city auditorium in February, because he and his Musketeer mates of Augusta have a solid lead in the Region two standings with the regular season half dissipated.

Lane Akers of Atlanta Bass holds the fourth slot with a 17.6 median, followed closely by Region One's top gunner, Robert Burgess of Columbus Baker High, and Danny MacGregor of Augusta's Boys' Catholic, Region Two leader last season and this until Ray Allen got hot. Both have been assaulting the nets for more than 16 points per game.

Dale Schuman, of Savannah High's perennial contenders, is flipping the round ball in for an even 16-point average, and Region four's most prolific point collector, Cedartown's Terry (The Terrible) Tucker, follows with a 15.5 average, a shade ahead of Marvin Moon, of Atlanta Smith High.

Another Allen, Atlanta Brown High's Richard, is a tenth of a point shy of the 15 mark as he fires from his new guard position. He won all-state honors as a forward a year ago and was acclaimed by Lanier's veteran coach Selby Buck as one of the greatest in Georgia annals.

Captain Harry Boyce of Columbus bagged 27 points against Moultrie, coming within three points of the Region one record for one game—set by Columbus' Johnny Byrne in 1952—and is tied with Lanier's Billy Mason with 59 points in four games for a 14.7 median. Lanier, again expected to be the team to beat for the state crown in the tournament here has another crack shot in six-seven Billy Greene, who has collected 54 counters.

Roosevelt's Jack Bush had a banner week and moved high up among the 30 players who are averaging more than 12 points per contest. Bush now is up to 14.7.

Charlie Aldridge's sizzling Russell five from East Point has played 16 games and has the only two AA players who have dumped in more than 200 points. Joe Bell has hit for 235, Harry Blondheim 205.

Butts Lauds Dalton Ace At Banquet

Cites Roy Wilkins For Top Potential

Special to The Constitution

DALTON, Jan. 21—University of Georgia-bound Roy Wilkins and George Mitchell, Georgia Tech-bequeathed Donnie Ellis and husky Howard Clark, who became a first-team guard by accident, were paid top tribute here Wednesday night as the Dalton Quarterback Club honored the Dalton High football team at its annual banquet.

Wilkins, 200-pound fullback who was chosen to the Journal-Constitution all-state team and later was selected on the all-Southern high school squad, was awarded a trophy as the Catamounts' outstanding back of the year. And Georgia Coach Wallace Butts, who made the principal address, hailed the huge Wilkins, who played end on defense, as having the greatest amount of potential of any prep player in the state.

Tackle Mitchell, a 200-pounder, was presented the award as the outstanding lineman on Coach Alf Anderson's eleven for the second year in a row. And quarterback Ellis won the WBLJ - Dalton News - Citizen award as the Catamounts' outstanding performer of the year.

Clark, 170-pound guard who is being courted by University of South Carolina among others, was winner of the trophy for the team's most improved player. The redhead, who became a starting guard after several players were sidelined for two weeks while suffering lime burns sustained in the Spalding game, became so outstanding that no one ever managed to beat him out of his job again.

Fans made the selection of Ellis and the players themselves voted the honors to Wilkins, Mitchell and Clark.

Hardin Gets MVP Award At Valdosta

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

VALDOSTA, Jan. 21 — Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech, who won the Sugar Bowl game and almost made the national coach of the year award, came to Valdosta Wednesday night to speak in honor of the man who won the Peanut Bowl game and did become coach of the year in Georgia. The man is Wright Bazemore, coach of the Valdosta State Class A football champions.

Dodd's talks veered away from the recent football rules upset that canceled out free substitution, except to say that "I hope to see the high schools continue their use of the old rule. The way I look at it, every boy should get a chance to play, and there's no place better to start off than in high school."

Quarterback Sammy Hardin was awarded the Valdosta Touchdown Club trophy as the most valuable player on the team.

PLANT GETS JONESBORO GRID POST

Frank Plant, ex-University of Georgia gridder, will assume the head coaching role at Jonesboro High School, Feb. 1, county superintendent J. E. Edmonds announced Wednesday.

Plant will succeed W. J. Kirksey, who resigned two weeks ago.

The new coach was a substitute center on the Georgia Rose Bowl team of 1942 and the 1945 Oil Bowl team after World War II service.

A native of Opelika, Ala., he was head coach of Bremen High two years and at Lavonia High one year before being recalled to active duty and serving two years as grid coach at Camp Atterbury, Indiana.

His assistant at Jonesboro will be Herb (Red) Amick, who has also been appointed physical education instructor effective next fall.

Effects of Two Platoon Veto Not Foreseeable at Present, Says Rice

By GRANTLAND RICE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21—Enough time has slipped by since the double-platoon system in football was adopted to check back on a few overlooked details.

Grantland Rice

The first fact is that neither coaches nor writers can come even close to agreeing on what the abolition of the platoon system means. Successful coaches disagree violently. Veteran writers are 20 kilometers apart. One fine coach says, "It was a terrible move for the players, the coaches, the spectators and the game." "For everybody," a coach just as smart and even more successful says, "it was the best thing that ever happened, giving up this rat race—the best thing for everybody."

The answer to all this chatter and clatter is that nobody knows. They are all guessing, deep in the dark.

I don't believe you will see any vastly different brand of football next fall than you saw in 1920 or 1952. It will still be American football. It will still be running, passing, blocking, tackling and kicking.

A few coaches with enough material will try to beat the idea by extending the old Rockne method, shock troops for the first period, another team for the second and third periods and then the fresh shock troops again. This demands 22 first-team players, which few coaches ever have.

One star coach says not nearly as many players will get a chance to play. What about the 3,500 on the 50 colleges that had to quit because the expense was more than they could handle? The double-platoon system often was the double-expense system.

The young men at St. Mary's, Georgetown, Santa Clara, etc., also liked to play football. On an average they played as well as any other college. Often much better.

And others have been about ready to fall out of line. I met the senior class president of one of the colleges that had to abandon the game. How did his college take it? "We were sore at first," he said. "Now we are glad it happened. We didn't have money enough to buy enough good players to meet top competition and we didn't like second-class rivalry. We'd much rather be out of football for good. There are many other good games."

I heard no loud outcry about injuries before the platoon system arrived. Last season Steve Owen of the pro football New York Giants had 15 of his stars injured badly enough to miss many games. I don't think there will be any increase in the injury department.

There will be more tired men but they will be playing against other tired men, not fresh competitors.

Tulsa Loses Two, Picks Witucki as Head Coach

End, Tackle Coaches Resign Also After Brothers Quits Hurricanes

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 21—(AP)—The University of Tulsa Wednesday lost two more football coaches, bringing to three the number resigning within the past 24 hours.

End Coach Sax Judd, a member of the staff four years, and Hillery Horne, who has coached the tackles for two years, quit in the wake of head Coach J. O. (Buddy) Brother's resignation Tuesday.

Associate Coach Bernie Witucki Tuesday night was named to replace Brothers whose resignation ended a 12-year tenure. Brothers for five years was line tutor before taking over as head mentor.

Witucki, a former high school coach and assistant mentor of the Chicago Rockets of the ill-fated all-America Conference, was given a three-year contract and a free hand to name his own staff. His salary was not disclosed.

Judd in 1941-42 was an outstanding end on the Golden Hurricane team. He returned to the school as end coach after playing several seasons of pro ball with Brooklyn of the all-America League.

Horne is a former Mississippi State player and taught the grid sport at Panama City, Fla., high school and at East Central Junior College, Decatur, Miss.

C&S Five Wins League Crown

The Citizens and Southern Bank team defeated the Forest Park cagers 68-67 for the Commercial League basketball championship Wednesday night in Adams Park.

No Kick-backs—No Extras—Just $8.98
Frankly, our difficulty is convincing the public that they can purchase complete glasses at the one price, of $8.98. After being "flim-flammed" for years by people who advertise one price, then charge for "extra tint," "extra shape," "extra strong correction" and extra high profits, it is understandable that the one price of $8.98, with no extras, irrespective of the type or style of frame, is hard to believe. Now prove to yourself, without cost or obligation, that you can get complete glasses for $8.98!

REPAIRS

Vote Probe Staff Fired By GOPs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—With one exception, the staff of the Senate elections subcommittee that investigated the Benton-McCarthy charges and other matters has been fired.

Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) is the new chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, parent body of the elections subcommittee. Efforts to reach him for comment were unaviling.

Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz), ranking minority member of the rules committee, told reporters who asked about the dismissals that their information was correct.

"THEIR PRIVILEGE"

"That's their privilege," he commented in noting that the Republicans now have taken over control from the Democrats.

Welford Ware of Woodbury, N. J., who became associate counsel of the subcommittee last July, told a reporter he could make no statement, but in answer to a question he said he was in charge and there were no other staff members at present.

Ware was sponsored for his post as associate counsel by Sen. Hendrickson (R-NJ).

Paul J. Cotter has been chief counsel of the subcommittee since last September when Sen. Hennings (D-Mo) became chairman of the group. Cotter was on loan to the subcommittee from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

LETTERS FROM JENNER

Members of the staff said they had received letters from Jenner on Monday asking for the resignations before the end of the day. Among them was Grace Johnson, long-time clerk of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee is responsible for investigating any senatorial election contests or complaints and with changes in the election laws.

Death, Fire, Disease, Injury Make Life Rough for Minnesota Family

MORA, Minn., Jan. 21—(AP)—So you think you have it rough? Death, fire, disease and injury have stalked the Harris Jans family and trouble still plagued it today.

Jans lost four fingers on his right hand in a hunting accident in 1943. The next spring, the granary on his farm burned down. That fall, a 5-year-old daughter, Charlene, was crushed to death when she fell beneath wheels of a manure spreader.

In 1949, three other children, Elaine, Harlan and Marie, were stricken with polio. Marie still wears a brace.

The Jans farm home burned to the ground in 1951. A year later, Jans suffered a heart attack and was forced to give up farming.

Before the birth of their last child, about two months ago, Mrs. Jans spent eight weeks in bed with double pneumonia. Last week, the child, Marcia, died of suffocation in her crib.

Last Wednesday, following the funeral, Mrs. Jans was hospitalized after a heart attack.

Creek Indians' Ala. Pow-Wow To Press $29 Million Claim

ATMORE, Ala., Jan. 21—(AP)—Creek Indians will hold their biggest pow-wow in 120 years here tomorrow night to discuss their claim of some 29 million dollars against the U. S. government.

Chief Calvin W. McGhee, head of the Council of the Creek Nation, said more than 8,000 descendants of Creek Indians who lost over 20 million acres of land in the last century are expected to attend.

They will hear reports on the progress being made in their claims for 23,267,600 acres of land seized by Gen. Andrew Jackson.

The Creeks east of the Mississippi have won the right to share in any award for the lands, which lie in Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

Congress Expects Eisenhower To Bare Legislative Program Late Next Week

By JOHN D. MORRIS
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Congressional leaders today looked for Eisenhower to spell out his legislative program late next week in a detailed message on the state of the Union.

In the meantime, Congress will mark time with regard to any major legislation, although its organizational work has been completed except for routine formalities by some committees.

As expected, the President's inaugural address yesterday was regarded as insufficiently specific as an outline for legislative action. He discussed foreign relations in the most general terms and entirely omitted mention of any of the pressing domestic problems to which Congress must attend in the present session.

Even if the inaugural had provided a more precise guide, however, Congress doubtless would have observed the customary courtesy of waiting for the message before getting down to business.

This will be the first time in history that there have been two state of the Union messages to the same session of Congress. Harry S. Truman sent one to the Capitol earlier this month but omitted recommendations in view of the fact that he would soon leave office.

Taxes, foreign aid and reciprocal trade are among the many major issues on which Congress is awaiting word from Eisenhower.

Post-Korea tax increases entailing about $5,400,000,000 of annual revenue are approaching their expiration dates. The 1950 excess profits levy on corporations, which produces about $2,500,000,000, ends June 30. An 11 per cent rise in individual income taxes, enacted in 1951 and producing an estimated $2,900,000,000 annually, ends Dec. 31.

Representative Reed of New York, chairman of the House ways and means committee, has introduced a bill to advance the expiration date of the income tax increase to June 30. He would let the excess profits tax die on schedule. But Republican congressional leaders, waiting for Eisenhower's recommendations, have established no policy on the issue.

Likewise awaiting word from the President is consideration of the Mutual Security Act, which also expires June 30. Truman proposed a new authorization of $7,600,000,000, but many Republicans expect Eisenhower to propose a much less expensive program.

Odd Lights Over Japan Chased Twice by Jets

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

A U. S. AIR BASE, Northern Japan, Jan. 22—(AP)—Strange clusters of red, white and green lights flying at blinding speed have been chased twice by U. S. jet pilots over Northern Japan, the Air Force said Wednesday.

The hurtling, rotating clusters were seen the nights of Dec. 29 and Jan. 9 over Northern Honshu, the main island of Japan. The Japanese government recently complained of flights over Hokkaido Island just north of Honshu by Russian fighter planes from Kurile and Sakhalin Island bases.

"Frequency of related sightings attest to some unconventional flying object active in this general area," said an Air Force intelligence report on the Dec. 29 spotting, indicating the mysterious lights had been seen many times before.

"There are too many indications of the presence of something for the source's remarks to be considered an observation of nothing." The report was signed by Lt. Col. Russell Powell, intelligence officer.

Col. Donald J. M. Blakeslee in his F-84 Thunderjet chased the lights the night of Dec. 29, at 35,000 feet. They headed west and out of sight. In that direction lies Russian Siberia.

The night of Jan. 9 the mysterious lights were picked up on the radar screen of an F-94 night jet interceptor.

"Radar contact for approximately two minutes was verified" by the pilot, Lt. Melvin E. Conine, whose home town was not available, and radar observer Lt. Walter D. Lawley Jr. of Tuscaloosa, Ala., the report said.

Conine immediately had started in pursuit, but quickly lost contact.

The flying lights were seen by other airmen aloft and by various ground personnel, said Col. Curtis R. Low, commander of the northern division of the Japan Air Defense Force.

"There was "remarkable corroboration as to description of the cluster of lights by people widely separated who hadn't so much as talked to one another," said Col. George W. Pardy, commander of this air base.

Blakeslee of Fairport Harbor, O., World War II ace and commander of an escort fighter wing here, was given permission to try to intercept the lights after he had spotted them while he was flying at 27,000 feet.

He observed the lights for approximately seven minutes, and as he set his course of pursuit "he noted that the object obviously was increasing in size," the report said.

Blakeslee extinguished all the lights of his aircraft "to make crtain he was not getting some reflection from his canopy surface."

After losing the lights, Blakeslee turned southeast and "after five minutes he noted the object again at 35,000 feet, level with him and flying what appeared a parllel course" to the right of him.

After more than four minutes observation, the lights headed west and disappeared, the report said.

Former Nazi Prison Head Given Death

METZ, France, Jan. 21 (AP)—A French military court tonight sentenced to death a peg-legged former Nazi prison commander and his guard chief convicted of the wartime murder and torture of inmates at the Schirmeck concentration camp in Eastern France.

Sentenced to death were Karl Buck, 59, one-legged commander of the infamous camp, and Karl Nussberger, 54, commander of the camp guards.

Buck, described by his German defense lawyer as a German captain who merely carried out orders from higher officers in Hitler's Army, was sentenced to death once before by a British war crimes court on charges or murdering British parachute troops, but was pardoned.

Karl Giegling, 52, an SS officer in the camp, was sentenced to 10 years at hard labor; Walter Muller, keeper of a fierce dog in the camp, 20 years; Siegmund Weber, 15 years; and Oscar Hoerdt, 5 years. Walter Baer and Johann Krauss each were sentenced in absentia to 20 years.

8 Sworn, Wilson Delayed; Clay Seen as Alternate

Wilson has become an increasingly controversial topic around the Senate since hearings last week before the Armed Service committee at which the nominee announced his intention of retaining a large block of General Motors stock, reportedly worth about $2,500,000 at current quotations.

Members of the committee have declined to recommend the proposed nomination for confirmation until there is clarified for them the extent to which a federal statute forbidding any officer of the government to hold an interest in a private firm that profits from dealings with his department.

RUMORS FLY

A rash of rumors ran around the Capitol today that Mr. Eisenhower had abandoned his intention to nominate Wilson, following an announcement by Senator Saltonstall (Rep., Mass.), chairman of the Armed Services committee, that no further action would be taken until the nomination is formally before his group.

Wilson's name was not on the list Mr. Eisenhower sent to the Senate for confirmation just after he took his oath of office yesterday. Saltonstall then postponed until Friday a meeting scheduled for today to hear Wilson further and to receive the formal opinion of Attorney General Brownell.

THROWN IN DOUBT

The Friday meeting was thrown in doubt by Saltonstall's statement. Later, however, a White House spokesman said he had no knowledge Mr. Eisenhower had abandoned his plan to name Wilson to head the Defense department.

Brownell was the first caller on Mr. Eisenhower early today and remained nearly two hours. He left the White House by a side door, and officials would not comment whether he had discussed the Wilson appointment with the Chief Executive.

Morse, addressing the Senate, took the position that no change in the law or procedures would alter the public interest he said was involved in appointing the industrialist to a cabinet post.

He told his colleagues that General Motors contracts with the Defense department have increased from $2,900,000,000 last July to nearly $5,000,000,000 now.

"General Motors has done a magnificent job on these defense contracts," Morse said. "Made a lot of money, too."

The Oregon senator likened the projected appointment of Wilson to court procedure in a jury case. He said a lawyer did not have to "waste a valuable peremptory challenge" against a jury panel member who had a financial interest in the case to be tried, since the judge would disqualify him as a matter of course.

WANTS SOMEONE ELSE

Referring to proposals by some senators, including Senator Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader in the Senate, that the existing la might be altered to exceptprospective officials finding themselves in Wilson's predicament, Morse said "someone else should be appointed secretary of defense."

"He's behind the eight-ball before he starts," he added. "He's bound to be suspect, no matter what he does. To say he would disqualify himself in any matter dealing with General Motors won't saitsfy many people."

He declared that pushing the appointment "would not be fair to him, or to the President, or to us."

When the discussion reverted to the business at hand, Senator Magnuson (Dem., Wash.) said he wanted the record to show he opposed the nomination of Gov. Douglas McKay to the interior post because he disagrees with the nominee's views on the development of public power in the Pacific Northwest and on the admission of Alaska as a state.

Professing high regard for McKay's integrity and ability, Magnuson predicted the proposed secretary of the interior would run "head-on into a fight" if he should attempt to sell the public power developments in that part of the country to private interests.

OTHERS OKAY HIM

Senators Morse, Gordon (Rep. Ore.) and Holland (D.-Fla.) praised McKay, despite past differences of opinion with him, and predicted he would carry out faithfully the policies of the new administration.

A similar course developed when Senator Young (Rep. N. D.) rose to announce his opposition to the nomination of Benson as secretary of agriculture.

He based his objection on his inability to find, from Benson's testimony before the Senate agriculture committee, that the nominee favored farm price support by the government at a level of 90 per cent of parity on a number of crops where the secretary of agriculture has discretion.

Senators Bennett and Watkins (Reps. Utah) along with Anderson (D.-N. M.) assured the Senate that Benson favors support of farm prices.

At the Pentagon, commenting on Wilson's unwillingness to divest himself of his General Motors stock because of the capital gains tax that would be involved, a spokesman outlined the procedure followed by previous secretaries of defense.

James Forrestal, the first man to hold the post, entered the government service as assistant secretary of the Navy. Before taking office, he sold his partnership in Dillon, Read & Co., investment bankers, and invested the proceeds principally in government bonds. In addition, he resigned all directorships and offices held in other corporations.

Louis Johnson, who succeeded him, withdrew from his law partnership. He and his partners assured the armed services committee he would draw no income from the firm in connection with any work it did for the government, either during his tenure or after he returned to private life.

The third secretary of defense, Gen. George C. Marshall, was an Army officer all his life and had no investments in conflict with the performance of his duties at the Pentagon.

The Chinese broadcast said the prisoners include Col. John Knox Arnold Jr., commander of the 581st Air Re-Supply Communications Wing of the U. S. 13th Air Force; Maj. William H. Baumer, operations officer of the 91st Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron, and Capt. Eugene John Vaadi.

Chou said he had been authorized by his government to "file a strong protest with the American Government" against the B-29 flight and what he called other invasions of Northeast China by American planes.

"SERIOUS THREAT"

He said his government considers American actions in Korea and China "as already constituting a serious threat to the peace of the Far East and the world." Such actions as invading Chinese territory add up to "mad plots to expand the war," he said.

The Chinese broadcast said the bomber was shot down at 9:15 p. m. on Jan. 12 over Wu Leng Pei, 11 miles northwest of the big Red MIG-15 jet base at Antung, and nine miles inside the Manchurian border.

Chou said his government considers American actions in Korea and China "as already constituting a serious threat to the peace of the Far East and the world."

"ACT OF PROVOCATION"

Chou said it was a "serious act of provocation" and that he had been authorized to "warn the American government that this series of outrageous aggressive actions are what the Chinese people absolutely cannot stand, and that the American government should bear the sole responsibility for these aggressive actions."

On Jan. 12, Superforts bombed Communist marshaling yards and bridges near Sinanju for the fourth straight night. Sinanju is 75 miles southeast of the Manchurian border.

2 B-29s LOST

The Air Force Saturday announced that two Superforts were shot down by Communist night fighters during the week.

Chou said the purpose of the B-29 "obviously was to carry out vicious strategic reconnaissance in another act of American imperialism design and an act of provocation in order to expand their aggressive war."

Wu Lung Pei is on the main rail line from Northeast China's capital and industrial center, Mukden, to Antung on the Yalu River boundary. The rail line continues into North Korea and is the major artery for movement of Russian and Chinese war materials into North Korea.

Chou said that in the past two months American warplanes had "violated our northeastern territorial air" on three occasions —Nov. 28, Dec. 8 and Dec. 13— "carrying out bombing and killing and wounding a large number of our citizens."

The radio description of the B-29 was detailed, as was Chou's statement of protest.

NUMBER GIVEN

It said the plane's number was 44-J-02217, "a B-29 bomber converted into a unit exclusively for purposes of strategic reconnaissance, special airdropping and communications and liaison."

Peiping said the plane's parent organization was the 581st Air Supply and Signal Regiment of the 13th U. S. Air Force based at Clark Field, Philippine Islands.

B-29s carry a regular crew of 11 men but frequently carry additional crewmen for practice or as observers.

B-29s frequently hit Communist targets near the Korea-Manchuria frontier but crews are given strictest orders to stay south of the border.

Chou's statement charged that the U. S. Government "has during the past two months been pushing preparations with increased vigor with a view to positively planning a venture to expand the war in Asia."

10,000 Welcome Jobless Truman

gion post played the familiar "Missouri Waltz" as Truman and his wife stepped down from the private car which they had used by courtesy of President Eisenhower.

"ALWAYS MR. PRESIDENT"

In his official welcome, Mayor Weatherford told Mr. Truman:

"You are home folks to us and you will always be Mr. President to us."

During the train trip home the former Chief Executive gave every indication he was having the time of his life in making the most of his freedom from the burdens of the presidency.

At one point he told reporters: "I'm going to join the army of the unemployed as soon as I get home. If you have anything to offer, get in touch with me."

"IT'S A SMALL ARMY"

And Truman replied: "You're right. It's the smallest army in the history of the world for a country of this size."

When the train pulled into Jefferson City, the Missouri capital, a crowd surged down the track to greet Truman, who stood on the rear platform.

Someone shouted, "what are you going to do?"

"ROCKING CHAIR OIL"

"Rest," Truman replied, "I was sent a big can of rocking chair oil."

When someone asked him about Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Truman answered, "Ask Ike. I don't know. I took care of him." This got a loud round of applause.

"I'm still a Democrat. Not one of these high hats who get all they can and then turn independent," Truman told the crowd.

NO ADVICE FOR IKE

He said he couldn't announce future plans. And he had no advice for Dwight D. Eisenhower, to whom he turned over the government yesterday in a gala Republican inaugural.

"Oh, it's not my place to offer advice," he said during a rear platform interview at North Vernon, Ind. "I wish him every success. And I will do everything I can to contribute to it."

Truman was due in his home town of Independence, Mo., tonight for a big welcome from friends and neighbors.

This going home was a pleasure, he said, and it was a lot different from any trip he has made since he entered the White House in 1945.

No pilot train rolled ahead of the train carrying Harry Truman, the ex-President, to inspect the tracks. And no Secret Service agents went along as he left the presidential private car (used by courtesy of Eisenhower) to walk into the station at Cincinnati to buy a paper.

It was the first time he had ridden anything but an all-Pullman special train since 1945, and he liked the looks of the people in the day coaches.

"After this, I'm going to ride on coaches," he said. "People on them are more democratic than those riding on Pullmans."

He took two unexpected strolls through the 13-car train. And he had a gay time of it.

Yes, a lot of things were different, although Truman said he felt no different than he did yesterday when he was president of the United States.

One reason that things didn't appear too different was the presence of reporters aboard the train.

"I like having them around," he said.

As Truman moved out of Cincinnati, someone shouted: "Hope to see you in the White House again in four years."

"Oh, no you won't," he came back.

Truman told a friendly crowd that greeted him at Washington, Ind., when he was asked if he would "take it easy," that he didn't know if he could.

"It's not hard work that gets a man into trouble—it's the lack of it," he said. "When a fellow has nothing to do, he gets into devilment."

He had the most fun of all walking through the train.

"Five stars alive!" he exclaimed.

"Things are getting back to normal when that happens," he grinned.

At another point he encountered Mrs. John McKay of Washington, nd.

"My golly," she gasped. "He's right here."

Recovering, she inquired whether he was glad to be going home.

"I sure am," he said, simply.

"OLD BOY"

He alighted from the train at Vincennes, Ind., and struck out at a fast pace for the engine.

While he stood outside in a cloud of steam, Engineer Bob Wilson hopped out, a suspicion of tears in his eyes.

"Glad to meet you, old boy," he told the former President. "God bless you and your family. You are looking fine."

"I never felt better in my life," the 68-year-old Democrat assured him.

A conductor told him:

Drunk's Wife Asks Morse: Forget Wire

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(INS)—Senator Morse (Ind., Ore.) told the Senate today he was accused of being a Communist because he blocked confirmation of eight Eisenhower cabinet appointments yesterday.

Morse said the charge was made in a telegram from a man and woman who each sent a wire of apology when he threatened to turn their first message over to FBI.

According to the senator, the woman's apology read: "Dear sir, my husband when he sent you the telegram was under the influence of liquor . . ."

administratively sound and would enable the objectives to be carried out.

Sen. Iris Blitch, chairman of the Senate's state of the republic committee, said a substitute is being drafted to meet objections to the original bill and tighten it up generally.

Mrs. Blitch said she could not say just what changes the committee will make in the original bill because she has been busy getting the free bridge authority bill revised and passed.

The free bridge authority legislation that Mrs. Blitch successfully steered through the Senate would create an authority empowered to issue revenue certificates to build up a $30,000,000 worth of bridges. A companion bill also was passed to give the State Highway department permission to rent the bridges from the authority.

The authority would be composed of three members, including the state highway chairman and two members to be appointed by the governor. Expenses of the authority would be limited to $25,000 a year, and the records subject to annual scrutiny by the state auditor. The State Highway department would have to approve all contracts let by the authority, and all contracts would have to be let by public bid.

Mrs. Blitch told the Senate the bill is the "culmination of an idea born in the minds of the governor, the chairman of the State Highway department and others to give the state a method of obtaining bridges over and beyond the allocations presently made to the Highway department.

"It is common knowledge," she added, "that the most expensive road construction is bridges and as we build more bridges we limit the number of miles of actual paving constructed."

The bill, passed 44 to 0, is expected to get smooth sailing in the House. Gowen said he hoped it would pass the House because it might enable the state to build all the bridges needed without the necessity for any toll bridges.

Meanwhile, Sens. William T. Dean of Conyers, Harry H. Redwine of Fayetteville, John E. Stoddard of Washington and Tom Callaway of Covington said they do not look for much Senate opposition to the toll bridge authority proposal when the committee's substitute is perfected.

Stassen Backing Economy in Aid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — (UP) — Incoming mutual security chief Harold E. Stassen was quoted today as saying the foreign aid budget should be "the smallest possible figure consistent with attainment of U. S. objectives."

Stassen was quoted by chairman Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), of the Senate foreign relations committee. Wiley said he believes his committee will give early approval to Stassen's nomination to the post.

ates a dairy farm. "I seriously doubt if a majority of the members of the House will want to be in session during that pre-Thanksgiving, pre-Christmas period."

Sen. Steve Hall of Lyons, who Wednesday introduced a similar resolution for a hold-over meeting next January, said he wouldn't fight the compromise plan. However, he said he didn't see much difference in meeting in November and in January.

Sponsors of the compromise said the November meeting would accomplish the aims of the split session, and, at the same time, would follow the governor's plan to avoid the "political" year meeting.

Committee chairman Roy McCracken said the November session would be held during the next fiscal year. This would give legislators the advantage of seeing the state operate under the new budget law for four months, and would also permit the lawmakers to go home Feb. 20.

McCracken and Talmadge refused to disclose what the governor said to the committee in its executive meeting.

the Communist Party aims for violent revolution in the United States.

The 13 face maximum penalties of five years in prison and $10,000 each in fines. The original 11 got the full five years, except for one defendant who got off with three years because of a gallant World War II record.

The 13 defendants—only four of them native Americans — took the verdict with no outward show of emotion. They were quickly and firmly refused further freedom on bail while they appeal the verdict—a legal procedure that could delay punishment against them for many months.

The defendants smiled, shook hands and waved to friends as they were hustled away to detention houses. The 10 male defendants were handcuffed but the three women were not.

The jury reached its verdict at 11:47 a.m., EST, five days, 21 hours and 24 minutes after they got the case at 2:23 p.m. last Thursday. There were six men and six women on the panel, including one Negro.

The actual pronouncement of the verdict was delayed more than an hour, however, to allow an absent defendant to reach court. He was Jacob Mindel, the oldest of the defendants at 71, who collapsed Monday with an apparent heart attack and was sent to a hospital. He rallied, however, and was discharged.

SAME CHARGE

The charge against the 13 second stringers was the same as against the original 11 — conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the U. S. government. Such a conspiracy is outlawed under terms of the 13-year-old Smith Act.

The 13 headed commissions or divisions of the party, or else served on party boards or were party educators.

The American-born defendants included Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, 60, Arnold Samuel Johnson, 46, Albert Francis Lannon, 43, and Pettis Perry, 54.

Betty Gannett, 44, and Victor Jeremy Jerome, 54, both of Poland. Claudia Jones, 36, a British subject: and Leo Weinstock, 48, from Hungary.

State Baptists To Meet in Macon for Evangelism Conference

Some 700 Georgia Baptists will meet Monday in Macon for a three-day statewide conference on evangelism.

The sessions will be restricted to discussions of evangelistic methods, reports on progress in evangelism last year and plans for 1953.

Among inspirational speakers will be Dr. Duke K. McCall, president of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.; Dr. James L. Sullivan, pastor of First Baptist Church, Abilene, Texas, and Dr. C. Y. Dossey, associate secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention department of evangelism, Dallas, Texas.

Dr. Searcy C. Garrison, Savannah, president of the Georgia Baptist Convention, will address the group at the opening session at 2 p. m. Monday. Other main speakers include Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary, Georgia Baptist Convention, Atlanta; Dr. H. C. Whitener, state secretary of Baptist evangelism, Atlanta, and Dr. Jasper N. Barnette, Baptist Sunday school board, Nashville, Tenn.

Forum discusssions Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning will be led by the following ministers: I. R. Hobby, Fitzgerald; J. P. Sheffield, Pelham; Paul Culpepper, Blue Ridge; C. E. Milton, Nahunta; Charles C. Duncan, Camilla; James W. McRay, Gainesville, and Dr. D. Albert Howard, Wrens.

Other speakers will be Dr. R. T. Russell, Waycross; Dr. George C. Gibson, Tifton; Dr. Gainer E. Bryan, Forsyth; Miss Janice Singleton, Decatur; Bernard D. King and Dr. Arthur Hinson, Tucker; John J. Hurt, the Rev. F. J. Hendrix, Dr. T. W. Tippett and Dr. Paul McCommon, Atlanta.

The conference will adjourn at noon Wednesday.

A Rhyme a Day

All families have problems which . . . perplex them more or less . . . the poor, the middle-class, the rich . . . have matters that depress . . . and overagitate their mind . . . and leave them with the thought . . . that life, to them, is most unkind . . . with troubles it has brought.

Take, for example, the sweet child . . . that one is bringing up . . . and, suddenly, the brat goes wild . . . and has to get a pup . . . no argument one may advance . . . is worth a single hoot . . . the parent hasn't got a chance . . . he has to buy the brute.

The problem next is, what to get . . . a dog that's pedigreed . . . may be a mighty handsome pet . . . but it is hard to feed . . . for, being an aristocrat . . . it has to have the best . . . of concentrated victuals that . . . have passed the acid test.

I can remember, years ago . . . the dogs around our place . . . would chase a rabbit to and fro . . . and if they won the race . . . they ate, but if they failed to win . . . they starved, or just about . . . their ribs were just beneath the skin . . . their tongues were hanging out.

Sometimes I think, while putting up . . . the dog food on the shelf . . . "I wish we didn't have that pup . . . I'd eat this stuff myself."

Customs Court Due To Go Republican

U. S. Customs Court, for years composed of five Democrats, four Republicans, now will go Republican. In the first place, the elevation of Judge Cole to the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals means that Ike will name a Republican as his successor. Then Judge Genevieve Cline of Cleveland has reached the retirement age of 70, creating another vacancy. Italy just awarded the Star of Solidarity to Customs Judge Paul Rao. Congress will have to rule on his acceptance of it. . . . No Isolationism In Care of Babies

Newspaper story of the new maternity annex of a large hospital says there will be nearly 100 bassinets for new babies and "the arrangement is such that fathers, on the other side of glass panels, can see their babies at any time from a distance of less than 10 feet."

These "antiseptic" precautions were handed down by the pediatrists of the Holt era—who insisted on boiling the baby's milk—to the trick child specialists of today. Although the antiseptic dooddads of the 19th century—white enamel, nickel plate, plate glass, white gowns, cheesecloth "masks" and powerful, that is strong-smelling, disinfectants, have been largely relegated to history in the past 50 years, it seems that the old fogies who ordain these things in hospitals are going to preserve these fine old traditions at all costs.

In the new obstetrics there is no need for a plate glass barrier between father and baby. The father visits his baby and his wife whenever he wishes. The mother keeps her baby in bassinet or crib right beside her bed, so she can fondle, dress, nurse or feed the baby whenever she likes. The nurse leaves the baby with mother and/or the father so they can learn how to take care of the baby, coming to show them or help when they call for help.

In this natural way the parents get to know their baby so that when they take the baby home the third or fourth day they will be happier and the baby will be happier, for, believe me, a baby knows when it is loved.

Pains, distress of "those days" stopped or amazingly relieved in 3 out of 4 cases in doctors' tests!

• Here's wonderful news for women and girls who — each month — suffer the tortures of "bad days" of functionally-caused menstrual cramps and pain — headaches, backaches, and those "no-good," dragged-out feelings.

Here is the exciting news. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — gave complete or striking relief of such distress in an average of 3 out of 4 of the cases in doctors' tests!

Yes! Lydia Pinkham's has been proved to be scientifically modern in action!

This news will not surprise the thousands of women and girls who take Lydia Pinkham's regularly and know the relief it can bring.

And it should encourage you (if you're not taking Lydia Pinkham's) to see if your experience doesn't match theirs . . . to see if you, too, don't avoid the nervousness and tension, weakness, irritability—and pain—so often associated with "those days"!

How Lydia Pinkham's works

It has a "calming" and soothing effect on the uterus . . . quieting the contractions (see the chart) that so often cause menstrual pain, cramps, other distress.

Remember Lydia Pinkham's, too—if you're suffering the "hot flashes" and other functionally-caused distress of "change of life."

Mirror of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Answer: Not if it is used to take advantage of another person's weakness. But there are times when telling someone pleasant things about himself and even exaggerating somewhat may be good for him and for you. The average person mostly tries to live up to his mental picture of himself — to be generous if he thinks himself so, for example. So the brighter his mental picture is, the pleasanter he will be to live with. What is more, the traits or talents in which everyone takes special pride are the ones which he will try to display on all occasions. Flattering someone about being well groomed will help keep him that way.

Do human relations depend on "communication?"

Answer: Completely, warns Robert D. Breth in Personnel Journal. No two people or two groups of people can deal with each other except on the basis of what each thinks the other wants or demands and where this belief is mistaken, confusion is bound to result. Nowadays employers are coming to realize that their methods of communicating with their workers are of primary importance since, as Mr. Breth says, "While communications can be improved without improving human relations, human relations cannot be improved without improving communications." There is no effort that pays off better than taking the trouble to make yourself understood.

Does "culture" make character?

Answer: Yes, maintains H. Deguy in "Mensch und Arbeit." Qualities like respectability, truth and honesty have no meaning except in relation to a person's dealings with the other members of the group of which he is a part. A man alone in the primeval woods would not be "brave"—he would be merely headstrong, reckless or light-headed. Again, traits of character are not hereditary: "They come from the cultural heritage, from environment, or by chance." There are character traits, like energy, which a person may be predicted to display on all occasions, while others, like honesty, are less consistent.

Bill To Ask 3-Man Rule For DeKalb

Legislation to replace DeKalb County's one commissioner form of government with a three-man board of commissioners sitting together as a policy body and separately as executives was proposed Wednesday by a semi-political citizens' organization.

H. H. Hutchins of Lithonia, president of the DeKalb Good Government League, said his group Thursday will begin legal advertising of its intent to apply for the legislation.

He said his group is seeking "a bona fide three-man commission, not a camouflage." He said "camouflage" describes a bill being drafted by DeKalb's legislative delegation that would apparently call for only one commissioner elected with four other commissioners appointed.

Hutchins said his group has not approached the legislators with its proposal, but will do so when leaders of the league complete the drafting of the three-commissioner bill.

Under the league's plan, Hutchins said, each commissioner would be a full-time executive, handling a certain phase of county administration. The commissioners would act as a board only on legislative or policy-making matters.

One commissioner would be elected from each of three "road districts" into which the county would be divided, Hutchins added.

State House Address System Fails; Legislators Miss Old Leather Lungs

The public address system in the House broke down Wednesday morning, plunging the lawmakers into bafflement and confusion. They cupped their hands to their ears (ear trumpet fashion) or to their mouths (megaphone fashion), struggling to hear or to be heard.

Cries of "Mr. Speaker, we can't hear!" rang through the chamber and finally Rep. Hugh McWhorter of DeKalb County moved for a recess until the public address system was repaired.

"Let's try a little harder, gentlemen," pleaded Speaker Fred Hand. "After all, we used to get along without these gadgets."

Peace No. 1 Need, Arnall Says

Former Gov. Ellis Arnall, who served as price administrator under Truman, said Wednesday night he believed the Republicans were voted into power because the "people believed that a change in leadership would push the country further towards a lasting peace."

"I believe that first and foremost in the minds of our people today is their desire for peace," the nationally known speaker and author said.

Arnall, who quit his Washington government post to return to his law practice, told a meeting of the Atlanta chapter of the University of Georgia Alumni Association that many people in the country have not yet learned that "armed might alone is not the way to peace."

There are those, he said, who advocate using the A-bomb and the H-bomb, but added: "I hate to think of the world being divided into armed camps. . . . I doubt if peace can ever be predicated on force. . . ."

The United Nations, the ex-governor said, offers a "possible solution for peace.

"Until someone comes along with a better plan or idea or scheme, I feel the UN deserves the support of our people."

Double Jailer Staff Reports In DeKalb

DeKalb County's jail had two sets of jailers Wednesday but indications are only one set will be paid.

Commissioner Scott Candler said Wednesday he would pay the four jailers the DeKalb Civil Service Board Tuesday ordered reinstated by DeKalb Sheriff Robert Broome who fired them Jan. 5.

Broome, however, said Wednesday he had submitted a voucher for the salaries of the four new jailers he had appointed.

Broome's attorneys said Tuesday they would not honor the board's decision that favored the old jailers.

The new jailers were on duty Wednesday. The old jailers reported for work but Broome told them he would not honor the Civil Service ruling. They returned home.

Bills Before the Legislature

COMPENSATION — (Sipple of Chatham)	To authorize payment to Louisa Ruhlin for damages to her automobile resulting from accident with state vehicle. (Referred to special appropriation committee.)

Bill Will Ask Water Project

A bill designed to raise the low water table in south Georgia by constructing a series of small dams along major streams is being drawn up for consideration by the state House.

Lowndes County Rep. Troy Register, author of the bill, said the severe droughts that have crippled farming operations in the area during the past five years have "made it necessary to do something radical at the earliest date in order to keep all of the water from being channeled off to the gulf or ocean."

He explained that the bill will call for a state appropriation of $100,000 to build inexpensive clay and rock dams "that will preserve some of the water that nature intended to be used for growing crops and watering livestock."

House Approves Work Camp Bill

The House passed a bill Wednesday giving county commissioners authority to set up public work camps and authorizing the Board of Corrections to withhold prisoners from camps which do not meet certain standards.

It also passed bills reducing fees for validating bonds, compelling attendance of witnesses in civil cases who reside outside the county and authorizing merit-system employees to hold municipal offices.

FCC's School TV Okay Is Sought by Board

By HERMAN HANCOCK

The Atlanta Board of Education will formally petition the Federal Communications Commission for permission to establish a television station for the Atlanta area.

Devereaux F. McClatchey, member of the board, Wednesday asked the board to include the television petition in a call for a special meeting at 2 p. m. Thursday, Jan. 29 to adopt the 1953 school budget.

McClatchey said the city proposes to file its application for the station before Feb. 1. He said the station would serve the entire Atlanta area in the educational field.

"We think television is important in the educational field and we plan to move promptly to secure the needed channel," McClatchey said. "If the proposed state-wide television program becomes a reality, however, we will co-operate and co-ordinate our activities to get maximum effectiveness from both systems," he added.

The 1953 budget, already approved unanimously by the board's finance committee, is approximately $1,000,000 larger than the 1952 budget and lists $11,872,283 for salaries and $1,679,857 for non-salary items.

Salary Aid Asked

Repeal of a charter amendment placing ceilings on salaries paid members of the City Executive Committee was sought Thursday by T. Elton Drake, committee chairman.

Drake wrote members of the Fulton County delegation urging repeal of the law passed in February, 1952, pegging maximum salaries for committee members at $200 and the salaries paid the chairman and secretary at $500.

Drake says the September primary will require a lot more work than previous primaries as a result of the city's expansion under the Plan of Improvement. He wants the committee vested with full authority to handle its own finances.

Power Taxes Paid

A check for $581,301.42 was presented the City of Atlanta Wednesday by the Georgia Power Co. for franchise taxes.

George H. Brodnax, vice-president and Atlanta division manager, and Joe B. Browder, division sales supervisor for the company, made the presentation to Mayor Hartsfield. The check represented the three per cent gross income tax paid annually to the city. The company had previously paid the city $286,028.36 for 1952 ad valorem taxes.

City Judges Warned on Drive Cases

Mayor Hartsfield Wednesday approved the new ordinance empowering municipal court judges to try drunk drivers in Atlanta, but Criminal Court Solicitor John I. Kelley warned the judges that they are subject to criminal prosecution if they enforce the law.

The mayor in signing the measure called on the judges to take immediate jurisdiction of local drunk-driving cases.

Meanwhile, Kelley said judges will face charges of false imprisonment if they enforce the law. He called the ordinance unconstitutional.

"If someone came to our office and showed he was convicted under the ordinance, we would have to take out an accusation charging the judge with false imprisonment," Kelley said.

He said also that judges operating under the ordinance could be sued for damages.

The ordinance was designed to replace the drunk-under-the-wheel ordinance that the Supreme Court declared invalid last spring.

Kelley said: "It is intended purely for revenue. As the cases come up we will see that the state court is not embarrassed and see that those subject to our jurisdiction are not railroaded in some other court."

Kelley has stationed an assistant in municipal court "to guard the interests of the state."

There are three ways to test the law, the solicitor said:

1. By damage suit against a judge.
2. By appeal to superior court.
3. By criminal charge against a judge.

He called the ordinance a violation of civil rights and said he is determined "to break up this tampering with the fundamental principles of jurisprudence."

Drunk-driving cases, heretofore, have been bound over to Kelley's court.

Rev. Wesberry's Congress Prayer Includes Ike

Dr. James P. Wesberry, leading prayer in the U. S. House of Representatives Wednesday morning, asked God to "forgive our individual and national transgressions" and "breathe a new spirit into our nation."

"As he has led us to marvelous victories on the field of battle in times past, use him now to bring us to even greater conquests . . . even to the establishment of permanent peace among nations."

Dr. Wesberry, pastor of Morningside Baptist Church, was acting chaplain of the lower house in the summer of 1949.

Walter Hill Again Head Of Art Body

Walter C. Hill, chairman of the board of the Retail Credit Company, was elected president of the Atlanta Art Association at the 48th annual meeting Wednesday.

Hill had previously served as president from 1934 to 1942. He succeeds Herbert D. Oliver, who has held the post for 11 years.

In his presidential report, Oliver stated that more than 200 students are enrolled at the High Museum School of Art. He added 24 exhibitions were held by the association last year together with 16 special events.

Ivan Allen Sr., chairman of the board of Ivan Allen-Marshall Company, succeeds Robert F. Maddox as chairman of the board of trustees. Joseph E. Birnie, president of the Bank of Georgia, was elected treasurer of the organization.

A series of slides on proposed building plans for the association was shown by the retiring president. E. R. Hunter, director of the museum, also presented a number of colored slides of famous Italian paintings.

FORMER WAR PRISONERS REUNITED—Capt. Donald P. Giles, right, Atlanta, and Col. Robbin R. Petrie of Scotland met here Wednesday for the first time since they were released from a Japanese prisoner of war camp in 1945. Reminiscing over their more than three years imprisonment, Giles and Petrie recalled that their weight dropped by 77 and 66 pounds, respectively, but they said they had no trouble regaining the lost weight after being taken off a diet of "nothing but rice." Capt. Giles is supervising inspector of naval materiel in the southeast.

TALMADGE, HARTSFIELD BURY POLITICAL AXES AT DINNER

Harmony as City Fetes Talmadge and Solons

Political differences between the state and city administrations were buried Wednesday night at a dinner Mayor Hartsfield and City Council gave for Governor Talmadge and members of the Georgia Legislature.

Precedent was broken as city leaders honored state officials at the first "state dinner" ever given, and Talmade and Hartsfield expressed mutual admiration for the achievements of each other and promised continued co-operation to build a "greater Atlanta and Georgia."

The event was staged at the Ansley Hotel in an atmosphere of harmony and mutual pledges of co-operation. Robert Snodgrass, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, who made the principal address, was presented as "Georgia's leading Republican." Hartsfield presided as toastmaster.

PRAISES GOVERNOR

The mayor said, "Talmadge is a great chief executive of which the people of Atlanta are proud and I want to present a great governor of a great state."

"A lot of people don't think Bill and I are friendly," Talmadge said, "but we are friends." This brought laughter and applause.

"We have differed over the county unit system because we and some others think it should be strengthened," the governor added. "We, however, are proud of Atlanta. We are friends despite our differences."

Talmadge and Hartsfield were locked in a battle last fall over the county unit amendment, which Hartsfield opposed. The amendment was defeated.

ATLANTA BENEFITS

The governor then said his administration has expended millions of dollars in Atlanta—"more than any other state administration in history and in some instances more than all other administrations combined." He pointed to educational contributions, highway projects, hospitals, pension funds and others.

"Every development in Atlanta affects all Georgia, and conversely every improvement in any part of Georgia helps Atlanta," Snodgrass asserted. "The region's gains are Atlanta's gains. Atlanta's gain are Georgia's gains. As good neighbors tonight, we face a magnificent future."

He urged completion of the expressways and construction of an east-west highway to give easy access to other areas of the state.

HospitalBody Helm Again For Spalding

Hughes Spalding, Atlanta attorney, Wednesday was re-elected chairman of the board of trustees of the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority. Spalding already has served six one-year terms.

Other officers re-elected include L. L. Gellerstedt, vice-chairman; Frank Wilson, secretary-treasurer, and Fred Walker, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Spalding said an amendment to the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority Act permitting a tax hike from five to seven mills has been introduced in the legislature. If approved by the General Assembly and County authorities, the tax increase would help finance construction of the proposed $22,000,000 Grady Hospital.

Governor Talmadge, Lt. Gov. Marvin Griffin and House Speaker Fred Hand have indicated they will support the measure, Spalding said. He added there has been no opposition to the bill.

The board approved rules and bylaws for the operation of the Hughes Spalding Pavilion of Grady Hospital, the private hospital for Negro patients.

White Bread's Return

LONDON, Jan. 21—(UP)—Britain announced tonight that wartime controls on cereals and feed grains will end at the next harvest, bringing the white loaf of bread back to British shops for the first time since the early days of World War II.

$1,000 for March Is Students' Goal

The students raised the first $500 themselves and hope to receive the matching funds from a benefit basketball game Thursday when the local team plays Lithonia.

'Starvation' Pay to Aged Hit in Senate

Old age pensions in Georgia are so meager that they provide only the means for "slow starvation," a state Senate leader declared Wednesday at a meeting of the Senate's public welfare committee.

This comment came from Senate president pro tem. Douglas Carlisle of Macon in discussion of a bill to eliminate a requirement that old age pensioners give the state a lien on any property they own before receiving old age assistance.

The committee, headed by Sen. Jim C. Walker of McRae, recommended passage of the bill on motion of Sen. Iris Blitch of Homerville. The bill was pushed by Senators James W. Adams of Weston and Herbert Moon of Americus.

The committee also voted to ask the State Department of Welfare to furnish the lawmakers the services of an expert to give explanations of and answer questions about public assistance rules and regulations. Mrs. Blitch, in making this motion, pointed out that it implied no criticism of the State Department of Welfare. The committee, she said, is unfamiliar with present regulations and wants information.

Senator Carlisle said present welfare payments "are not enough to sustain life" and added that the state welfare director places the blame on the federal government.

Maximum old age assistance grants are $55 a month, with the federal and state governments jointly providing the funds.

Several committee members expressed the opinion that present welfare regulations encourage vagrancy and cause hardships by shutting off or reducing benefit payments if the recipients have other income.

Annex Plan At East Point Hit by Bill

A bill that would prohibit East Point from annexing any additional territory was tossed into the House hopper Wednesday by Rep. Hoke Smith of Fulton for introduction Thursday.

The bill would prohibit any municipality, in a county of more than 300,000 population, that has come under the Gowen Home Rule Act from annexing any additional territory. East Point is the only municipality in Fulton County that has adopted home rule under the Gowen Act.

Smith said he had been requested to introduce such a bill but that any objections to the bill would be heard.

Representative Smith also readied for introduction a bill to require persons filing a claim against the city to give 90 days notice, and another bill authorizing the city to permit the construction, erection and maintenance of overhead and underground passageways across, over or under Atlanta streets or alleys.

Rep. Hamilton Lokey tossed in a bill that would give city employees in the armed forces credit for time spent in the armed services on their pension rights with the city.

SOUTHERN CHIVALRY must be maintained—chief objective of the Old Guard. Crossing sabres over Miss Jean Baumgarten are Lt. Col. J. Howard Allison, left, and Col. Warren Coleman. The first Gate City Guard unit was organized in 1857 as the Militia for the City of Atlanta. It was reorganized as a social group in 1897. Dress uniforms were in order.

'Y' Head Arrives In Atlanta

By JEAN ROONEY

"The ferment of women in the Far East is getting a helping hand from the YWCA."

Mrs. Maurice Moore of New York City, a national official of the "Y," made this statement on arrival in Atlanta Wednesday to address the annual YWCA banquet.

The attractive visitor supervises the American "Y's" work in 15 foreign countries from Manhattan headquarters.

"The U. S. 'Y' has newly opened a center in Uganda, Africa," she reported.

Her organization and the United Nations work close together. She is currently consulting with UN officials on cultural, health and child welfare programs for foreign countries.

The mother of two grown sons, Mrs. Moore said that her husband takes as great an interest in YMCA activities as she does with the YWCA. He is chairman of the board for Time, Inc.

A BABY EXPECTS ONLY LIFE AND LOVE

Don't Wait 'Til You Have a Car or a New House

Marcia Winn

You Can Afford Children

When can you afford to have a baby? The answer is simple: Always or never.

Over and over again you meet a young couple quietly debating whether or when to start having children. "Jimmy is just getting started in business," the wife will say. "We want to wait until he is settled."

Or, "Everything is so expensive right now. We thought we'd better wait a year or so until we can afford it." Or, "We want to wait until we have a house of our own. An apartment is no place to bring up a child." Or, "We both are working. We couldn't get along if we didn't. We have to have a car . . ."

IN-LAWS DEBATE

In-laws often start the debate. The mother of the husband, the mother of the wife. They had their babies right away and remember the struggle it was, economically. They want their babies, now grown, to have things a little easier. They may urge, "O, wait until you have been married a while. Have a good time first. Save some money. Wait until you are on your feet financially."

The delayed child often never materializes. You put it off and put it off and put it off until the house is paid for, you have the latest model car, and the annuities are ready to roll. By then you may not want a child, or you may want one terribly. You may even want one as a means to bolster your slipping marriage.

DON'T HAVE REGRETS

But by now, five or 10 years after marriage, you may find it impossible to conceive. Why? There are many theories, none proven. At heart you will always feel that your long delay made it impossible. You will regret it bitterly.

Or you may be much more fortunate. At 30 or 35 you will have your first child, but you and the child would have been better off had you had it at 20 or 25. At 30 or 35 you are more of a perfectionist, more involved in yourself, more used to a quiet life. At 20 or 25 you are ripe for parenthood, physically and psychologically.

A baby doesn't expect a house, a car, and a bank account. He expects only life and love.

Mamie Puts Paste Jewels In Top Spot for Spring

By AGNES McCARTY

The glow worm has turned since Mamie Eisenhower decided to wear paste jewels for the inauguration . . . costume glitter now has an edge on the glass-cutting kind.

Decorative costume pieces will dramatize the simple, collarless and cardigan necklines coming up this spring. They will also accent necklines that go down with the sun.

Hoops—once pushed down grassy slopes by little girls—will be worn in the ear lobes of very grown girls when they take a fling at spring.

These earrings will be big as bracelets or tiny as baby rings, oval shaped or double circles, beaded or enameled finish, smooth silver and gold or rhinestone-studded.

Synthetic stones will make up in color what they lack in authenticity. You'll see turquoise, coral, maize, iridescent navy, and green jade. Coral beads, fragile shells colored in soft pastels, will be perfect for wear during the hot summer months.

Girls who have metal allergy, stiff necks, weak wrists or other disabling ailments will be happy to know jewelers have found a new weightless metal that permits wearing globs and globs of massive ornaments without using a crane to lift them into position.

For the pet fancier there will be dogs, pussy cats, fish, ducks and even frogs made of simulated rubies, sapphires and moonstones. There will be bar pins for securing those slippery but glamorous stoles.

White, the perfect suntan supplement, will be used for snowy blossoms, set in gold metal and sprinkled with rhinestones.

Another trick is a bauble called "Beaux Belles." These sure-fire man catchers are frosty white bells mounted on gold and strung on a necklace of white beads and gold links. Earrings, pins and bracelets are also available in this motif.

Jewelry will fit next season. Necklaces and bracelets are sporting adjustable catches and earrings are curved to the shape of the ear.

G. C. Joneses To Celebrate Anniversary

Two prominent and beloved Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. George Carpenter Jones will mark their 58th wedding anniversary on Friday, Jan. 23 at their home, 848 Myrtle St.

Mrs. Jones is the former Miss Lida Davis of Anniston, Ala., where her marriage to Mr. Jones of Roanoke, Va., took place in 1895. The couple moved to Atlanta in 1900. Until his retirement, Mr. Jones was vice-president of J. M. High Company. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are the parents of Dr. Mallory Jones of Blue Ridge; Roger Jones of New York; Dr. Ben Jones, who has just completed his duty as a commander in the Navy and returned to Atlanta; G. C. Jones Jr. and the late Paul Jones.

Cabbage Growers Beat Mrs. Wiggs This Winter

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture both Texas and Florida planted a big winter crop and plentiful supplies will be arriving in Atlanta shortly.

But it isn't the great day for the Irish it may seem to be from the cabbage report, for accompanying this pungent vegetable on the plentiful food list is pork rather than corn beef.

Use pork, cabbage, turkey, cottage cheese and frozen vegetables on your menus this week—they are your best buys.

LOST 23 LBS.—SWELLING IN FEET GONE—PRAISES ANARO

"I have been taking Anaro Concentrate for a few weeks and find it the most wonderful product for reducing," writes Mrs. J. R. Bennett of 208 Simpson St., N. W., Atlanta, Ga. "I have already lost 23 lbs. and feel so much better. It sure is wonderful the results you get from the simple Anaro home recipe. I have had no more swollen feet since taking Anaro and feel like a different person. I couldn't walk very far being short of wind but after reducing with Anaro I can walk all day. If all fat people will give Anaro a chance as I did they will find Anaro a safe inexpensive way to reduce and one that brings results. Anaro doesn't make you nervous as other medicines do. Anaro will give you more pep and energy and it is Anaro for me from now on."

It's amazing how quickly you can lose unsightly fat at home. Obtain liquid ANARO at your druggist, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it to the maker for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with ANARO.

Censorship Is Argued

Rep. Charlie Dews' proposed censorship bill is something a great many people feel very strongly about. Since I lightly took a flyer into so-called Lewd Literature last week a lot of folks have taken pen in hand and written in on the subject. Others have telephoned.

There are good arguments on both sides. Some, noting the ridiculous example of Boston, where best sellers are made by the simple achievement of being banned, say censorship is dangerous and they don't want a state board of any kind telling them what they may or may not read. They fear abuses and, more than that, they fear that trash will be given importance and value if it is banned.

Then there are those who feel that children, free to wander into the comic stacks of the local drugstore or newsstand, should be protected from the more revolting kinds of literature.

One Atlanta woman, who asks that her name be withheld to avoid embarrassing her own teen-age youngsters, expresses the better arguments for censorship.

"I have long taught young people in Sunday school, have served on the high school PTA board and have two teen-agers (15 and 18) of my own," she wrote. "I am convinced, completely, that the cheap, tawdry type of literature easily purchased by any child, any age, is harmful, degrading and dangerous. I believe a child is definitely influenced by what he sees and reads.

"Why visual aids and libraries in schools if this is not true? How can they read this trash, see this filth and it not be harmful? We don't allow minors to buy liquor. Why should they be allowed to buy obscenity?

"Contrary to your experience of finding the covers suggestive and the contents mild there are some which seem harmless enough (to fool those at home) but actually are nothing but one seminude after another inside.

"To a mother who has tried hard and faithfully to raise her children in the way they should go it is heartbreaking to find hidden among other magazines, on high shelves, in boxes, these full-of-filth pocket books and magazines. Too obscene to be sent through the mails, yet all right for our boys and girls?

"I am pleading with you, with Rep. Charles Dews in Georgia, with Rep. Gathings in Washington, any and all mothers and fathers, to use their influence to do away with this dreadful evil in our midst."

The Household Word Today is Anacin®—for the quick relief Anacin gives from the pain of headache, neuritis and neuralgia. Anacin, you see, is like a doctor's prescription; that is, Anacin contains not just one, but a combination of medically proven, active ingredients . . . in easy-to-take tablet form. In fact, you may have received envelopes containing Anacin tablets from your physician or dentist, and already know that Anacin gives quick, long-lasting pain relief. Do pass the good word—Anacin—along to your friends so they enjoy Anacin's quick effectiveness also. Better mention, too, that Anacin tablets are easy to find in any drug store. In flat tins of 12 and 30. Economy bottles of 50 and 100.

Tip For Smart Travelers! Pack a jar of new Instant Maxwell House Coffee in your traveling bag. Wherever you go, whatever the hour, you'll have a cup of delicious coffee the instant you want it. Instant Maxwell House is the revolutionary new type of coffee. Not a powder, not a grind, but millions of tiny Flavor Buds of 100% pure coffee . . . ready to burst instantly into that world-famous Maxwell House flavor. No fillers of any kind are added to dilute the real coffee flavor.

Instant Maxwell House Coffee is quick-to-fix as old-style instants but is extra-delicious because it's real Maxwell House Coffee, brewed for you in the spotless Maxwell House kitchens. At the exact moment of perfection the water's removed, leaving those amazing Flavor Buds of coffee!

Yes, for coffee that's good to the very last drop . . .

The Most Called-On flavoring-aid I know is lemon juice. And Now—thanks to its new unusual form—Sunkist Quick Frozen Lemon Juice—it's easier to use and the best time-saver ever. Lemon juice at natural strength you use right out of the can and so delicious. It's squeezed from their own grand California lemons by Sunkist Growers—then quick frozen, in enamel-lined cans so you can keep in your refrigerator like any other unused food. Always handy. Always economical. No wonder housewives have learned to get their Sunkist Quick Frozen Lemon Juice early from their grocer's frozen food chest.

Snowy-White . . . Color-Bright—that's how beautiful my white and color-fast cottons and linens look after their Clorox-laundering! And how wonderful that I can depend on Clorox to make them hygienically clean, too. To make linens snowy-white or color-bright, you know, isn't enough—so for added health protection I urge you to use Clorox. And Clorox offers you another investment in protection. It has a special linen-conserving feature...it's extra-gentle, free from caustic, made by an exclusive, patented formula. Clorox also reduces rubbing—that means longer life for your costly linens.

I suggest that you also use Clorox regularly in your routine cleaning of drainboard, sink, tub, and shower floor. It's the most efficient germ killer of its kind, and when kitchen and bathroom surfaces are Clorox-clean they're safer for family health.

Stewarts Arrive For House Hunting

Arriving from Memphis yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Stewart, who are here to do a bit of house-hunting in preparation for moving to Atlanta in the spring. Mr. Stewart is president of Chicago and Southern Air Line.

The Stewarts were accompanied by their good friend, Don Warren, who joined Mrs. Warren at the home of her father, Lee Ashcraft. The Warrens will not only help them look for a house, but during the week end will introduce them to some of their Atlanta friends.

Tall, slim and brunette, Mrs. Stewart is as chic and attractive as they come, according to Mrs. Warren. She and Mr. Stewart have a son, Sidney Jr., who is in business in Memphis, and a daughter, Sandra, who is a freshman at Smith. Mrs. Stewart is a member of the Memphis Junior League.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT VISITOR arriving yesterday was James I. Merrill of New York, internationally known as a poet and writer, who is the guest of his mother, Mrs. William L. Plummer, and General Plummer at the Georgian Terrace for a week.

On Jan. 28 General and Mrs. Plummer and Mr. Merrill will leave for Ponte Vedra, Fla., to spend a week at the Plummer beach home.

Mr. Merrill returned in December from a three-year stay in Europe, and has established residence at 28 W. Tenth St. in New York. His latest published work includes a poem and a translation from the Italian in "New World Writing" and a poem in the 40th anniversary number of "Poetry Magazine."

HOSPITAL NOTES—Mrs. Stewart Bird is a patient at Emory Hospital, where she is suffering from a broken ankle.

ARRIVING BY MOTOR on Thursday from Miami are those former Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. Morris T. McLemore, who will be guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mercer Poole, on W. Wesley Rd.

Mr. McLemore will attend the Touchdown Club dinner on Saturday evening. He will return to Miami on Sunday but Mrs. McLemore, the former Margaret Peavy, will remain for two weeks with her parents.

A FOURSOME leaving for Florida on Friday includes Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spratlin and Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Pugh. They will motor to Homosassa, where they will board the houseboat, Bottoms Up, for several days of fishing. Later they will go to Miami for a visit, returning in 10 days.

ATLANTANS just back from Florida are Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Shropshire Sr., who spent the past six weeks touring the state. They visited Daytona Beach, Miami, Naples and St. Petersburg.

MRS. JOSEPH WINSHIP returned by plane on Sunday from Memphis, where she visited her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Mongold, and is convalescing at her W. Andrews Dr. home from an attack of pneumonia.

Her son and daughter, Lt. and Mrs. Daniel D. Hankey of Columbus, announce the birth of a son, Daniel Clyde, on Jan. 18 at the Army Hospital at Fort Benning. Mrs. Hankey is the former Lillian Winship.

MRS. BEN T. HUIET has returned from Washington, where she attended the inauguration of President Eisenhower.

FRANK C. MATTHEWS, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Kitty Conyers Matthews, and his sister, Mrs. Joe Booth, on Drewry St., left Tuesday for assignment at Forbes Air Force Base.

Mr. Matthews spent the past year and a half on special assignment in Puerto Rico and the Pacific area.

DON'T LET YOUR DAUGHTER ENTER MARRIAGE BLINDLY

... without knowing how important douching with ZONITE is to feminine hygiene, her health, happiness and to guard against offensive odor. It may spare her years of unhappiness in married life ahead.

Weak, ineffective homemade mixtures DO NOT and CAN NOT give the great germicidal and deodorant action of ZONITE. Yet ZONITE is ABSOLUTELY SAFE—even to the most delicate tissues! In fact, no other type liquid antiseptic-germicide for the douche of all those tested is SO POWERFUL YET SO HARMLESS.

The ZONITE principle—developed by a famous surgeon and scientist—completely deodorizes. It helps guard against infection and kills every germ it touches. It's not always possible to contact all the germs in the tract, but you can rely on ZONITE to immediately kill every reachable germ. Use ZONITE as needed without the slightest risk of injury. TWO-CAREER FAMILY

Coles Comprise Baking Team

By YOLANDE GWIN

When Mrs. C. E. Cole Jr. urges her guests to "take two biscuits and butter them while they're hot" she knows that the next time around no urging will be necessary.

"My husband is a far better cook than I am," she confides, "so he does all the baking at home and of course he always fixes the hot cakes and waffles for breakfast. But, confidentially, I like my vegetables better."

(One of a Series)

Baking, whether it's at home for his wife and four-year-old son Skippy or for his many customers, is doing what comes naturally for Mr. Cole, who, with his wife, form a successful career team in the baking industry.

"I've always liked anything relating to baking," he said the other day at one of his shops, "and when I was in the Army in Europe I fortunately was assigned to KP duty and wound up in front of an oven."

Mrs. Cole, who, strangely enough was named Zee Cole before she married, dated her brother-in-law first. She and her husband "had a date one New Year's Eve," she recalls, and married in 1947. Two years later—in March, 1949—they entered another partnership—the bakery business.

"I had always worked in an office and knew figures and bookkeeping, so my husband and I decided that we could handle a business ourselves. I do all the bookwork and he does all the baking," she said.

"And don't forget, honey," added Mr. Cole, "how you suggest decorations for various cakes and anniversaries and special days. And don't forget, too, how you keep me posted on the best-selling products. You know, how certain cakes sell better during the week end and others on weekdays."

"My wife keeps my bakery date book," he continued, "as well as being my private banker. In fact, I couldn't run the business without her."

Although Mrs. Cole says her husband has always been partial to dough (all kinds) he chose the traditional "candy and flowers" technique to court her hand in marriage.

Miss Kelly Is Married

Miss Helen L. Kelly, daughter of Mrs. Marsh C. Kelly of Laurel, Miss., and Atlanta, and the late Mr. Kelly, was married to William M. Carmichael Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Carmichael, at a ceremony solemnized Wednesday at the home of the bridegroom's brother and sister, Dr. and Mrs. James Harris Dew, at 214 Peachtree Battle Ave.

Dr. John R. Richardson, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, officiated in the presence of the immediate families. There were no attendants.

The couple will honeymoon in Jamaica, B. W. I.

WARNING

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected.

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes into the bronchial system to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm, and to aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

MARY HAWORTH

Family Friends Say Wife Henpecks Her Husband

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a wonderful even-tempered husband, but I am on the fiery side. Because of this difference in temperaments, our friends and relatives seem to think that Frank is henpecked.

Because of my job we now own our home, good furniture and a new car. As our baby is due in another month, Frank has taken over the heavier housework. Since I am not going out so much, he goes alone to athletic events.

My mother died when I was small and my father and brothers ruled me with an iron hand. Now they too "sympathize" with my husband.

DEAR D. R.: You are worried about something but the essence of your anxiety isn't clear. Probably as pregnancy advances, you feel increasingly dependent upon Frank's loving care. And because of this mood, in weeks of comparative idling in unaccustomed solitude, you are having twinges of conscience about taking his docile devotion for granted.

You admit to a somewhat fiery disposition, as compared to Frank's bland temper. Thus, I gather there is some shred of foundation for the jocular charges of relatives and friends.

If Frank treats you as an equal, it's because he wishes to associate with a woman of strength. He is not such a puny follow that he has to bluster and throw his weight around to assert "superiority" to the opposite sex.

MAKE LIKE IKE—Edward and Sandy Baughman smile broadly and raise their arms as they had seen Ike do during inauguration at Washington. The youngsters, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Baughman of Atlanta, agreed that in Washington they saw "the biggest parade there ever was." And they think "Ike is swell."

Nazi Bomb Kills 11

BERLIN, Jan. 21—(AP)—Eleven persons were killed and 21 others injured tonight when a wartime German aerial bomb exploded at a Soviet airfield outside Berlin.

Boys, 3, Wander Onto Bus, Take 38-Mile Ride; Wide Search Set Off

ALMA, Mich., Jan. 21 (AP)—The local bus depot is also an ice cream parlor so it wasn't unusual that Johnny Skinner and Paul Fershee Jr. happened to be there today. They are only three years old.

And the driver didn't think it strange when he saw them climb aboard and take a seat in the rear of the bus.

The bus pulled away. And then Paul and Johnny were reported missing.

Paul and Johnny, still unconcerned though night was falling, were picked up and taken to the station.

Paul's father drove the 38 miles to Saginaw, hustled the boys into his car and brought them back to Alma.

It was a busy day for Paul and Johnny.

Senate Halts Bill Asking Vets' Vehicle

A bill to permit the State Veterans Service Department to buy an ambulance to transfer veterans to and from hospitals was sent back to a Senate committee Wednesday for further study.

Sponsored by Sen. Grady Coker of Canton, the bill was opposed on the floor of the Senate by Sen. Robert H. Jordan of Talbotton.

Dr. Coker said he had received a petition from hospitalized veterans and telegrams from American Legion and VFW posts supporting the bill.

Senator Jordan, who said he arose reluctantly to oppose the bill, declared he is an infantry veteran of World War II and a member of an American Legion post, but sees no need for the state to buy an ambulance.

Jordan said Veterans Administration officials have told him they have ambulances and contract with commercial ambulance owners to provide all service needed for veterans.

He added that the bill appeared to be an effort by the State Veterans Service Department to get around present state law that prohibits state ownership of passenger vehicles except for the governor and the State Highway Patrol.

AtlantanReceives Thank-YouLetter From Truman

Atlanta's John L. Conner has received a letter written by President Truman on his last full day in office thanking Conner for his work in Savings bond drives.

Dated Jan. 19, Mr. Truman's letter said in part: . . . "I know how much time and effort you have put into the Savings Bond Campaign work . . . This type of service is most valuable to the government and to the country, and you are to be congratulated."

Conner, president of the Southern Federal Savings and Loan Association here, was chairman of the Cruiser Atlanta bond drive here in World War II which raised $65,000,000 to pay for a new warship—namesake of the city.

Return 70 Slots, U. S. Judge Rules

A federal judge in Macon has ruled that 70 slot machines, several of them owned by an Atlantan, now being held by the government, must be returned to their owners.

Judge A. B. Conger ruled that the machines were inside Georgia before the date a federal law regulating gambling devices in interstate commerce became effective. Among claimants was John H. Moore, proprietor of Ace Novelty Co. here.

Emory, Tech Hard Hit by Flu Bug

Influenza and mild respiratory infections reached the epidemic stage in some sections of Georgia Wednesday, closing down schools and crowding hospitals.

In the Atlanta area, where no actual epidemic has been recognized, students at Emory University and Georgia Tech were hardest hit by the "flu bug," with Emory's infirmary almost filled and Georgia Tech's more than half filled by victims of respiratory infections.

Dr. Robert T. Anderson, president of Laurens County Medical Society, announced an epidemic in Dublin, where physicians were reported "too busy treating patients to report to the County Health Department."

Dr. Fred J. Coleman, chief of staff of the Laurens County Hospital, said the hospital was "bursting at the seams." Another Dublin hospital, Claxton Memorial Hospital, had set up extra beds in all available space and was operating at one and one-half times its regular bed capacity.

Dublin physicians and pharmacists were reported "working around the clock" in the care of influenza victims. One physician said he treated 150 patients over a three-day period "for the same trouble."

In Milledgeville Baldwin Superior Court could not reconvene on schedule because the presiding jurist, Judge George S. Carpenter of the Ocmulgee Circuit, was in bed with influenza. Superior Court Clerk J. Cleveland Cooper was at home with the same ailment. A criminal court docket of cases slated for trial this week was postponed until Feb. 16.

Due to a sharp increase in the number of cases of influenza in the area, Jefferson schools were closed Wednesday. Schools already shut down over the state include Dahlonega and Lumpkin County schools, Valdosta, and Coolidge schools. In other areas, absenteeism from schools as a result of influenza reportedly ranged from 10 to 25 per cent.

At Eastman, physicians reported an average of 40 flu patients a day over a week-long period. Throughout Dodge County cases were increasing, a Wednesday report stated.

At Georgia Military College in Milledgeville, Col. Ren A. Thorne, president, reported largest number of cases hospitalized in the GMC infirmary at one time was 16, with the daily average "much lower."

Oglethorpe University officials in Atlanta reported 15 students had come down with influenza during the past 10 days, but that only one patient was now in the campus infirmary. Dr. Linnie Tallant, nurse in charge of the infirmary at the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, said several students are absent as a result of "severe colds." Cases at Agnes Scott College were reported light.

QUICK QUIZ in PAIN RELIEF-

QUESTION: Why do millions reach first for St. Joseph Aspirin to relieve discomfort of headache, muscle aches, pain and feverishness of colds?

ANSWER: Because St. Joseph Aspirin is "aspirin at its best," pure, dependable, fast acting to bring greater comfort in record time.

Bowen Bid Would Spur U. S. Trial

M. Neil Andrews, attorney for John Horace Bowen, filed a motion Wednesday designed to hasten trial of the government's civil suit against Bowen for $466,233.59 allegedly due in back income taxes.

Recent developments in the case indicate attempts to reach an out-of-court settlement have been thwarted, observers said. Letters filed in the court records showed such a settlement had been anticipated as long ago as last August.

The suit is scheduled for jury trial Feb. 9. It has been postponed three times since last July.

The motion asked U. S. Atty. Ellis Mundy to answer detailed questions about the government's contentions that Bowen transferred a large share of his income to his wife to avoid paying taxes. U. S. District Judge Boyd Sloan ordered the answers filed before Jan. 31.

Women Grads May Be Eligible For Commissions

Women graduates of accredited colleges may be eligible for commissions as WAVE officers, Chief Thomas M. Roberts, recruiter in charge of the Navy Recruiting Office in Atlanta, announced here Wednesday.

Lt. Helen Horne

He said Lt. Helen Horne, WAVE procurement officer, will be at the recruiting station, 1110 Georgia Savings Bank Building, each Friday to interview interested women between the ages of 21 and 47.

WAVE officers are now active administrators in dozens of specialized fields in offices and naval establishments in the United States and abroad, Chief Roberts said.

Interested persons may telephone WAlnut 7834 for further information or make an appointment to see Lieutenant Horne.

Pianist Critical of Critics

Eugene Istomin, 27-year-old pianist who will appear here Thursday in concert with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, Wednesday leveled a verbal barrage at music critics when he said "there isn't a one qualified to criticize a concert."

The gifted recitalist who is regarded as a brilliant interpreter of 18th century works, spoke principally of the New York critics who, he said, let their own personal likes and dislikes for certain composers and selections influence their writings.

"The only person qualified to criticize music is an accomplished musician who is concerned only with the technical aspects of the program. On the other hand, he said, critics build up a following by being destructive instead of constructive.

"A critic should do everything he can to develop and encourage the development of musical expression," he said.

He is on a tour which will take him to Europe for his third annual appearance in music festivals in France. Istomin made his professional debut with the New York Philharmonic Symphony and the Philadelphia Symphony orchestras after winning two outstanding awards.

Knife in Chest, He Says: I Want To Die

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21, (INS)—A 52-year-old man walked into Washington's morgue today with a butcher knife sticking in his chest and calmly announced, "I want to die."

Morgue attendant F. T. Byrne said the man, John Bucy, of Baltimore walked up to his desk and put a note in front of him. The attendant was busy and pushed it aside. Bucy then said: "Read it. I want to die."

Byrne told police: "I thought he was going to shoot himself, and told a couple of fellows to grab him. When they did, his coat came apart and we saw the knife."

Byrne was given emergency hospital treatment but was not put on the critical list.

Butter Glut Is Problem For Benson

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—One of the major problems confronting Ezra Taft Benson, secretary of agriculture, is what to do about butter. Whatever he does about it it is almost certain to have repercussions in Congress and throughout the farm belt that might affect the political fortunes of the Eisenhower administration.

MILLION POUNDS DAILY

The government now is buying butter at the rate of a million pounds a day under mandatory price support provisions of the agricultural act of 1949, known as the Gore-Anderson Act. This butter is being bought at 90 per cent of parity which, at current prices, involves a daily expenditure of more than $650,000.

Parity is a formula under which the farmer is guaranteed a price for his product equivalent to the price he pays for what he buys in the market. The law requires that butter prices be supported at 75 to 90 per cent of parity. Charles F. Brannan, the former secretary of agriculture, fixed the current buying program at 90 per cent.

67.75 CENTS A POUND

The government began to buy butter Nov. 30 when the market price fell below parity. Since that date it has acquired 37,279,334 pounds, for which it has paid $25,030,736. Slightly more than 20,000,000 pounds were purchased in the first 20 days of January. Based on 90 per cent of parity, the price the government is paying for Grade A butter is 67.75 cents a pound and for Grade B, 65.75 cents a pound.

Secretary Brannan's price support program was set on the basis of the market year that runs from March 31 to March 31. The present program, therefore, will end in a little more than two months.

PROBLEMS

The problem for Secretary Benson to decide within that time is whether to continue to support the market at 90 per cent of parity or to reduce the rate to some figure not lower than 75 per cent.

Another problem is what to do with the butter that is piling up.

Any reduction in the parity percentage, observers here believe, might cause embarrassment to the Eisenhower administration in areas that strongly supported the President in last year's election. The bulk of the butter being bought comes from Wisconsin, Minnesota and New York.

Mothers Rave About this wonderful Laxative-Stomach Sweetener

When constipation occasionally upsets little stomachs, children often act up, have tantrums or sulk because they feel miserable, can't eat or sleep right. That's why wise mothers give Syrup of Black-Draught whenever youngsters are sluggish, suffer gassy digestive upset, sour stomach, or bad breath from constipation. They know its wonderful laxative action can help sweeten such sour stomach, too! Then how a child's disposition improves!

Sweeten Stomach to Sweeten Child!

Syrup of Black-Draught tastes honey-sweet so children take it eagerly. Made of nature's pure vegetable herbs—selected to act thoroughly but gently. No harsh griping. Given at bedtime, brings comforting relief in morning—thus helps sweeten sour stomach too. Your child virtually sleeps away these constipation worries! Next day youngsters laugh and play! No wonder 17,000,000 bottles have been sold! Get Syrup of Black-Draught from druggists. Works wonders for a child's good nature!

ADULTS For constipation try regular Black-Draught, laxative-stomach sweetener, famous since 1840. Familiar Powder Granulated or convenient new Tablet form.

Bank of Georgia Shows 25 Pct. Gain in Deposits

By ALEX JOINER

Deposits of the Bank of Georgia increased 25 per cent during 1952, President Joseph E. Birnie reported at the annual stockholders' meeting Wednesday.

Activity in the checking department increased 10 per cent; loans made 13 per cent; and a substantial net gain was realized in the capital accounts, Birnie said.

R. L. Ellis

At year-end the bank was serving a total of 46,815 accounts. In the 10 years from 1942 to 1952, total resources have been increased from $4,641,890 to $20,756,247.

Net earnings of the bank increased some 15 per cent over 1951, Birnie reported, and during the year regular and extra dividends totalling $1.25 per share were paid.

In another action at the annual meeting Rutherford L. Ellis, president of Lipscomb-Ellis Co., was elected a director. Ellis, a native of Atlanta, is a member of the board of regents of the University of Georgia; secretary, Southern Mills, Inc.; president, Southern General Insurance Co.; president, Greater Atlanta Safety Council; and national secretary and a director of the American Cancer Society.

Two new assistant cashiers were elected at the board meeting immediately following the meeting of stockholders. They are James C. Hughes and C. Howard Johnson. Hughes, a Navy veteran, is manager of the bank's adjustment department and has been with the bank 12 years.

Johnson, manager of the paying and receiving department, has been with the bank since 1942 and served with the Merchant Marine during World War II.

Cotton Prices Make Gains

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—Cotton futures closed firm today on a late covering movement which readily absorbed hedging and liquidation. Final prices were $1.35 to $1.75 a bale higher.

Some of the demand was attributed to expectations of high loan figures for this week. This was confirmed after the close of trading when the latest Commodity Credit figures showed loan entries for the week ended Jan. 16 reached 199,976 bales, compared with 176,363 bales in the preceding week. This was the highest rate of week impoundings of the staple so far this season. The net stock of 1952 crop cotton in government hands on Jan. 16 was 1,406,006 bales. The larger movement of cotton into the loan has been forecast in recent advices from the cotton belt and reflected the decline of market prices to about the loan levels, with some grades selling under the loan.

In early trading, futures displayed some easiness, but the selling was not sustained and the market gradually improved in slow dealings until the demand broadened in the last hour. Meanwhile holders of nearby March futures continued to lighten commitments in that month as certificated cotton stocks rose again by 1,012 bales. The stocks now total 171,586 bales.

Announcement of the dividend was made by John A. Simmons, president. Other officers are Joseph L. Lanier, chairman; A. O. Benton, vice-president; T. Scott Avary, treasurer; Edgar L. Henderson Jr., secretary, and John A. Simmons Jr., assistant treasurer.

Atlantans Appear In Phone Film Featuring Dixie

Atalanta employees of Southern Bell Telephone Co. are featured in a new motion picture about the South which was shown for the first time at a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club Wednesday.

Entitled "For Progress . . . Call Dixie," the color film features the growth and development of the South and tells about recent developments in telephone communications including coaxial and radio relay.

The 16-mm. sound film was made by a Southern film producer for Southern Bell and Kelly Mosley, Atlanta district manager, said it will be made available for borrowing.

Local telephone employees featured include Mrs. Elizabeth Ballew, Mrs. Myrna Jean Bentley, Frances Towler, Virginia Chandler, L. C. Phillipa and B. J. Sims.

Stocks Ease As Traders Wait Policy

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—A further easier tone developed in the stock market today, but not under the impact of any news developments. It was purely a trader's market. Public participation was at a minimum and selling was easily absorbed.

The market generally drifted to the lower side, giving little regard to individual corporate developments or the tenor of the day's news. Attention was more intent on the policies of the Eisenhower administration and the tax problem was foremost from an industrial-corporate angle.

Pricewise, the list only showed a reduction of 0.32 point in terms of the New York Times index. However, in statistical terms, there were 1,125 issues traded on the Stock Exchange of which 464 declined, 371 advanced and 290 ended unchanged.

The sound of trading continued muted. Transfers on the big board were further cut to 1,300,000 shares, compared with 1,490,000 shares on Tuesday.

Atlanta Produce

On the Atlanta fruit and vegetable market demand and trading were slow early Wednesday with receipts light to moderate according to the Production and Marketing Administration. Some Florida vegetables were weak, or sold lower with little change on other lines.

Cabbage was about unchanged at 75-1.15 per bag and few best to 1.25; sweet potatoes held at recent levels of 4.75-5.50 per bushel and best to 6.50 with poorer, large and small stock lower. Georgia turnip greens were slow at 75-1.00 bushel and mustard greens were also 75-1.00 per bushel basket; Florida turnips held at 1.75, few 2.00 dozen and Georgia fair quality brought 1.25-1.50 dozen. Collards were slow and weak at 75-1.00 dozen for Georgia stock. Green onions were 85-1.25 dozen and some Florida 1.50 with few best higher. Florida ordinary to fairly good Tendergreen beans ranged 3.50-4.75; pole beans fair to good were 4.00-5.00 per hamper. Yellow crookneck squash was some lower at 4.50-5.00 per bushel and some large 2.50-3.00. Bell peppers averaged lower at 4.50-5.00 on bushels of medium to large size with some small 3.00. Fairly good to best cucumbers brought 8.00 to high as 9.25 and some ordinary low as 5.00. Few Florida English peas were 6.00 bushel; eggplant 2.50-3.00 bushel; cauliflower easier at 3.50-3.75, mostly 3.75 per crate of 10 to 13 heads, and celery was weak especially for Pascal type as Florida 16-inch crates of 3-4 dozen size Pascal jobbed 2.25, few high as 2.50, and Goldenheart 2.25-2.50 and some best to 2.75.

Florida box oranges held at 3.15-3.25, mostly 3.25, and Temple oranges in half boxes at 2.50-2.75; tangerines were lower at 2.00-2.25 and few high as 2.40; grapefruit jobbed 2.50-2.75, mostly 2.65-2.75 per box and best brands to 3.00 with Foster Pinks some lower at 4.00-4.50 per box.

Mrs. Maybelle Barfield, a resident of Atlanta for 50 years, died Wednesday at her residence, 924 Washington St., S. W. She had been in failing health the past nine months.

Mrs. Barfield was the mother of J. Leroy Hughes, senior district supervisor of the circulation department of The Atlanta Journal.

A native of Waverly Hall, Mrs. Barfield was the former Miss Maybelle Kilpatrick. Shortly after coming to Atlanta she married Dr. James Rowland Hughes, an Atlanta physician who died in 1919. She later married H. H. Barfield who died in 1941.

Mrs. Barfield was a member of the Capitol Avenue Baptist Church. She was a member of the Fidelis Sunday School Class and the WMU.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Capitol Avenue Baptist Church. The Rev. R. L. O'Brien will officiate. Burial will take place in Crest Lawn Cemetery.

Also surviving are a stepson, James Barfield, New Orleans; a brother, A. M. Kilpatrick, Atlanta, and two grandchildren, Barbara and Brenda Hughes, Atlanta.

State Fire Study Is Offered Texans

Representatives of the Texas fire insurance commissioner have been invited to Georgia to study the state's fire prevention program, Insurance Commissioner Zach Cravey said Wednesday.

Cravey said the invitation was extended after Commissioner Paul H. Brown of Texas praised the Georgia program and asked this state's assistance in training fire safety inspectors for his own state.

HOT HOUSE

Hole Bill Stirs Brief Tempest

A tempest over holes in the ground raged briefly in the House Wednesday.

Rep. Harld Willingham of Cobb county arose to speak for House Bill 14, which would force landowners to cover or fill abandoned wells, specifically "any hole over 10 feet deep and abandoned for 60 days."

"You mean a man could be sentenced to 18 months and fined $1,000 for having a hole on his land, whether he knew it or not?" demanded Rep. Robert L. Russell Jr. of Barrow County.

"You mean if my three kids dug a 10-foot hole I could go to jail?" put in Rep. Hoke Smith of Fulton county.

Rep. Woodrow Wilson Lavender of Elbert county leaped to his feet to protest that he did not want to be "responsible if somebody trespasses on my land, dabbles down in my holes and gets hurt."

The hole in the ground argument flared over the House and then ended abruptly with a motion to table it.

Fired Manicurists Open Up Shop In Picket Line

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 21—(AP). Seven manicurists, fired from their beauty shop jobs, began serving their customers today on the picket line in front of the shop.

Mexican law permits pickets to close a struck establishment so long as there is at least one of them on the picket line all the time. The seven manicurists have set up a tent on the sidewalk where they sleep and have a bench before the store where they give the manicures.

Racial Bar May Cancel Jobs, U.S. Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—General Services Administrator Jess Larson, in an order signed before President Truman left office, announced today that firms doing work for the government will be forced by "persuasion or cancellation" to bar job discrimination in their plants.

The order is designed to back up a report by Mr. Truman's special committee on discrimination, made public last Friday, that both industry and government agencies have largely ignored existing nondiscrimination clauses in government contracts.

A spokesman for Larson said, in reply to a reporter's question, that the new crackdown was "dated some time last week" but just made public today. He said it takes time to get the order around the GSA's regional offices throughout the country.

Ike Drops Plan To Push Nebraskan for India Post

By W. H. LAWRENCE
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—President Eisenhower has accepted defeat in the first senatorial challenge of his appointive powers.

He has abandoned plans to name former Gov. Val Peterson of Nebraska as ambassador to India and will appoint him instead as a member of the White House staff, a post that does not require senatorial confirmation.

THWART DESIRE

Nebraska's two Republican senators, Hugh Butler and Dwight Griswold, successfully thwarted Eisenhower's desire to have Peterson succeed former Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut in the New Delhi post.

It could not be learned tonight whether the President and his new secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, had had the opportunity in recent days to decide upon a New Delhi appointment.

IMPORTANT POST

This is one of the more important diplomatic posts, not only because of India's size and position in the Asian family of nations, but because of the important role that country plays, as a declared neutral, in many of the debates in the United Nations between the Soviet and Western blocs.

With Senator Butler taking the lead, Eisenhower headquarters had been informed before the inauguration that Peterson would be declared "personally obnoxious" if his name were submitted for the India post or for any other job requiring Senate approval.

ANGRY EXCHANGES

Butler won renomination last spring by a large majority over Peterson after a bitterly fought primary campaign in which there were many angry personal exchanges.

Senator Griswold, just elected to the Senate to fill the two-year unexpired balance of the term of the late Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry, felt less strongly in his opposition to Peterson's appointment, but was unwilling to quarrel with his senior colleagues.

SENATORIAL CUSTOMS

Unless a state's senatorial delegation is divided, the Senate almost never confirms a presidential appointee if one of its members of the same party as the President declares that a nominee from his home state is "personally obnoxious" to him. Senatorial customs do not require great elaboration of why a senator regards a political opponent as unsatisfactory for any job requiring Senate approval.

It is understood Peterson will work directly on the White House staff, possibly as an administrative assistant to the President and probably as a liaison man between the federal and state governments. He formerly was chairman of the executive committee of the Governor's Conference, which meets annually and includes representatives of all states and U. S. territorial possessions.
